——By Arthur Brisbane——

Chicago, June 16—The House yesterday voted IMMEDIATE CASH PAYMENT OF THE TWO THOUSAND FOUR HUNDRED MILLION DOLLARS BONUS CERTIFICATES.

Veterans would have preferred jobs, although spending two and a half billion dollars cash among the merchants, big and little, would be a wonderful thing for business revival.

Unfortunately, it is necessary to warn veterans that the bonus so quickly voted in the Lower House will hardly become a reality.

There are those who believed that paying the bonus with money printed by this government would in some way offend our national fetish, GOLD. We sent tens of billions to Europe without destroying the gold standard. But when it comes to paying men that we also sent to Europe, that is different.

Today's papers will tell you about the Republican prohibition plank. It is hard to please wets and drys with the same plank, and that is the problem.

The plan, now, is to let each state decide for itself whether it prefers ice water, beer or light wine. Some think the INDIVIDUAL should be allowed to decide that for himself, but under our "free government" the individual becomes less and less important.

That ancient lady, the Chicago Tribune, was carrying on something frightful yesterday. On the front page Lenin, very gory, was sitting in Lincoln's place, his name replaces that of Lincoln scratched out. Piles of corpses lie around, presumably those of "the rich" that have been first "socked" and then "soaked."

On the right a "radical Congress," its members carrying red paint, marches off with jeers.

The front page editorial says "the national conventions this year may be the last ones held in the United States by a free people."

It is some consolation to know that a nation with too much of everything, except common sense and courage, that doesn't know how to use them too much, deserves to lose its freedom.

Suppose we had some REAL trouble, for instance the "black death," that in the Middle Ages killed one-quarter of Europe's population? That would mean a million and a half dead in greater New York, hundreds of thousands in Chicago; THIRTY MILLIONS THROUGHOUT THE UNITED STATES.

Lenin's ideas will not rule here, Lincoln's name will not be rubbed out, and this country will not lose its freedom, for a while, even if it does have to give half its annual income to national and local government taxes.

The people themselves and individuals chosen by them may have to use their brains and do something. But that will not be such a terrible calamity.

About prohibition, it is certain that the Eighteenth Amendment will not leave the Constitution. That would require votes of 36 states, and you could not get 36.

Some suggest "nullification," living under prohibition, paying no attention to it. But that would mean living on a bootleg basis, millions of Americans drinking poisonous concoctions of bootleggers and stuff, even worse, made at home.

One way out might be acceptable. The prohibition amendment says intoxicating liquor must not be made or sold, and orders Congress to prevent it. The Volstead "one-half of one per cent" act is the law now.

Perhaps that could be changed to read that things intoxicating, within each state, are such things as the state itself declares to be intoxicating. If Wisconsin says that 5 per cent beer is not intoxicating, 5 per cent beer becomes legal in Wisconsin.

If California says 12 per cent wine is not intoxicating, California may drink that wine legally, and so through the list of states.

The difficulty is that the Republican party, while it feels compelled to throw some kind of a sop to the wet Cerberus, doesn't like Cerberus, and wishes it could throw him a sop dipped in carbolic acid.

The Republican party knows that the prohibition movement is its annex, packed with votes. And while here and there some Republicans are as wet as the eaves of the winds, the heart of the Republican party is dry.

It is interesting to study faces of delegates gathered in long rows. The majority, smiling, seem to say, "this may be somebody's funeral, but not mine."

The faces are those of temperate men and women, keen, intelligent faces. Somebody says "there is no genius in them." But if another young Bonaparte sat under the New Mexico banner, the same person

LATE NEWS FLASHES

OUST FRANCE, BAN CAL BOOM

Chicago, Stadium, June 16—Former Senator Joseph I. France of Maryland sought vainly at the Republican convention today to nominate Calvin Coolidge for President, police ejecting him forcibly from the speaker's platform after he had engaged in a struggle there with officials. France himself had been nominated for the presidency a moment before by L. B. Sandblast of Portland, Ore. The former senator won the presidential preference primary in Oregon. Chairman Snell was joined in resisting France by Nathan W. M. MacChesney, assistant sergeant-at-arms, who started shoving France back from the speaker's platform. Everett Sanders, sergeant-at-arms, and an assistant grabbed France and started moving France from the platform. "You will have to carry me off," shouted France. Police escorted him down the stairs as he continued shouting protests. As MacChesney stood beside the disheveled, perspiring, livid France, the latter leveled his finger at the Chicagoan and shouted: "You'll be sorry for this." France's answer to a direct question as to why he was ejected was: "They did not want me to nominate Calvin Coolidge."

Chicago, June 16 (INS)—Hello, everybody!

Well, all you folks back home, those 2000 delegates and alternates you sent to the Chicago convention made a night of it.

It was the biggest night since the country went dry twelve years ago. And like that historic national bust, the thing that kept all those boys and girls out on West Madison at most of last night was liquor.

John Barleycorn Out in Society

Old John Barleycorn showed his face in polite company for the first time in years when those delegates came in from supper. Yes, sir, he got cheers. Yes, and boos, too. But he was the most important person at that stadium party.

Anyway all of those delegates had remorse this morning. Part of them were sorry they didn't throw old John out before he got a grip on the speaker's platform rail. Others feel he ought to have been given a still better break. And the rest of them—the friends of the administration—are sorry they ever brought up the subject at all. But it was some party, any way you take it.

4 TERRORIZE TOWN, GET $10,000

Gunmen "Shoot Up" Webster, Flee With Bank Cash, Abandon Riddled Car in Oxford

A bank shipment of $10,000 was stolen today in Webster by four bandits, who terrorized the little town with a shotgun-pistol holdup in the main street and covered their escape with gunfire from a stolen car armored with steel plate.

The robbery, believed to have been the work of Boston gunmen, was the 1932 gangland version of the old west days when highwaymen lay in wait for the express stage coaches bearing gold for the frontier banks.

DISABLE, QUIT AUTO

Its loosie was the main street exactly in front of the postoffice. It was broad daylight and there was heavy traffic flowing by.

The robbers disarmed a policeman, seized the money from a bank teller he was guarding, threatened a taxi driver who was with them and swung two shotguns and a pair of pistols in the faces of pedestrians who stood, transfixed, viewing the audacious proceedings.

The gunmen's car roared off toward Worcester and at least one warning shot was fired from it to discourage pursuit.

IN ARMORED AUTO

They continued their flight from that point, it is presumed, in a second car which had been waiting them. The car they used in the robbery—believed to have been stolen in Boston—was armored inside with sheets of steel which nearly covered the windows, leaving openings only large enough for the barrel of a gun. The number plates on it were stolen at Norumbega Park Tuesday night.

After they changed cars, the bandits are believed to have headed for Boston, Worcester or Providence. Police of all New England were warned to be on watch for them. The direction of the first

Fight for Curtis' Place Follows Nomination of President; Fuller Is in the Race

BULLETIN

Chicago, Stadium, June 16—With noisy approbation, the Republican convention today repledged itself to Herbert Hoover.

State after state first marched in a roaring half-hour demonstration in his honor, then recorded its support in the more tangible fashion of official support as the convention reached the nominating stage, and neared final adjournment.

Only once was the outpouring of Hoover praises interrupted, but that was in an extraordinary manner.

Dr. Joseph I. France of Maryland, the only man beside the President to be place din nomination, tried to address the convention, saying he wanted to nominate Calvin Coolidge.

Not a delegate, he was refused recognition by Chairman Snell and finally escorted from the platform by police and convention officials.

They had hired early intimations of such a move by Dr. France and it was revealed that former Senator William M. Butler of Massachusetts had ready in his pocket a letter from Coolidge directing that any maneuvers along that line be killed.

The final session was called to order at 11:43 a. m. (12:43 p. m. Boston time).

After the singing of one stanza of "America," Chairman Bertrand Snell introduced Rabbi Ferdinan M. Isserman of St. Louis, Mo., who delivered the invocation praying that

Vote on Bonus Blocked, Loses in Committee

Washington, June 16—A request of Chairman Smoot of the finance committee that the Senate take up immediately the cash bonus bill was blocked today by Sen. Thomas (D.), Oklahoma, an advocate of the measure.

Tagged with an unfavorable committee report, the $2,400,000,000 soldiers' legislation marked time while leaders battled.

Early in the day the finance committee voted, 11 to 2, against the measure urged by 20,000 former service men now in the capital. As this was reported to the Senate, hundreds of the veterans looked down from packed galleries.

VETO AXE IS READY

Senate leaders forecast the bill, which passed the House Friday would be defeated. President Hoover has promised a veto if it reaches him for action.

The 21,000 veterans, whose shoddy camps had been converted into quagmires by torrential rains, hung on doggedly for the final answer to their plea.

CLASH WITH POLICE

The plan of the district fire department to remove several hundred bonus marchers from quarters, assigned them in an old building in lower Pennsylvania ave. brought the first open controversy between the marchers and police today.

A tart verbal exchange between George Alman of Portland, Ore., billeting officer, and Police Capt. W. G. Scott brought predictions on the part of both the marchers and the police that "a change" in the hitherto harmonious relations between police and the veterans was imminent.

Edward Williams of Johnson City, Tenn., a regimental commander of the marchers who accompanied Alman, told Stott there was no place for the men to go and that, if driven out of the lower Pennsylvania quarters, they would "come out and squat on Pennsylvania ave." Stott's reply was heated. He said:

"If that is the attitude of the men we have been soft-pedaling, there is a change coming."

This drew a hot retort from Alman.

"You're damn right, there is a change coming!" Alman exclaimed. "We are tired of it now. The change is coming quicker than you think!"

Hoover G.O.P. Ideal, Asserts Scott

Chicago, June 16 (AP)—Herbert Hoover was pictured as the "ideal standard bearer of the Republican party" today by Joseph L. Scott of California in renominating his old friend for the Presidency.

Scott told the Republican convention the President was "a past master in that greatest of all masters of overlearning that I like to think of as 'human engineering'."

Scott urged his hearers to reflect upon the tribulations and spirit of the pioneers in this country.

"We have an illustrious example of such a spirit—the spirit of one who, through the last long gruelling four years, has stood at the helm as captain of our ship of state, and has steered safely through fog and hurricane, and passed the terrors of the lee shore," Scott said.

"At times he has stood alone with his thoughts—alone with his conscience. He has never lost faith. He has never relinquished his soul for the applause of the moment. He stands today serene and confident in the knowledge that he has kept the faith.

"The President's life typifies the spiritual values and exemplifies the undaunted courage of the real American sprung from the grass roots of the nation."

G. O. P. PRAYER FOR AID IS NEEDED, SAYS BRISBANE

CALL FOR DIVINE GUIDANCE APPROPRIATE, HE ADDS

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.

Convention Stadium, Chicago, June 16—Ten-forty a. m. The convention should start its day in 20 minutes. It actually started 50 minutes late. The band has been playing soft music to soothe the rather small crowd. Many empty seats. You must buy your seat this year and many in Chicago can think of something better to buy.

A serious glee club sings, and tries to sound martial. Senator Dickinson will presently tell the convention it is open. The Right Reverend Thomas P. Bona, of Chicago, will pray for the Republicans. Then committee reports will be read, Bertrand H. Snell, of New York, as permanent chairman, will speak.

The singers' sweet voices say "the gang's all here." If so it is a small gang. More than half the seats are empty.

President Hoover, Will Rogers and nearly all of the West wants Vice-President Curtis to stay on the ticket. And that, probably, will happen. The nerves of Wall Street "strong men" are shaken. They dream dreams and see visions, Stalin of Russia rewriting our Constitution, no one allowed to have a million dollars, except Stalin, all sorts of horrors.

The situation at first seemed difficult for Mr. Curtis. He is a good American, has been a model Vice-President, and for the usual American purposes would make a good President.

But he has not commanded an army, has no short pipe, that can be smoked upside down, and knows as little about cussing as a weanling child. "Darn" is about all he knows, and he never says it.

But, first Mr. Dawes again says plainly that he doesn't want any vice-presidential nomination.

Second, President Hoover who knows how to exercise pressure in politics, is exercising it for Mr. Curtis and the ticket will probably be "Hoover and Curtis."

APPROPRIATE SONG

The singers, trying to make the crowd contented, in spite of a late convention, start singing "The Tale of an Aching Heart," highly appropriate.

The Right Reverend Monsignor Thomas P. Bona, who is about to pray for the Republicans, is resident prelate of Mary of Perpetual Help Rectory, in Chicago. Republicans should take that as a good omen. If they ever needed help, they need it now.

Monsignor Bona beginning his prayer at noon, expresses "deep concern about the country and its welfare." "The rich are poor and the poor are without bread." Monsignor Bona reads his prayer, as Bishop Freeman of Washington did yesterday.

MANY VOTES INVOLVED

Next comes a discussion concerning the South Carolina delegation. It is "soft pedalled," referred to a committee. Louis Seibold says that every "Lily White" discussion disturbs Republicans this year. They need the two hundred thousand colored votes in New York, and the other thousands in in Chicago, and elsewhere.

Up comes Bertrand H. Snell, leader of the Republicans in the House of Representatives. He possesses the faculty of seeming to believe what he says, announces that he is going to "name the next President of the United States." And he wants you to know that "the Republican party is accustomed to victory."

Republicans, says he, do not become stampeded, or suggest quack remedies in emergencies. He knows the advice of the ancient Greek orator, "to convince others, be yourself convinced."

OLD-FASHIONED CHEERS

He actually starts cheering of the old-fashioned kind. Men get red in the face. Governor Rolph of California waves his state flag with a big bear and star on it.

A splendid advertisement for California's climate and citrus vitamines is Rolph, face pink, eyes bright, always flying, when a plane is to be had.

A lady near Rolph, dressed in silk that looks like leopard skin, starts "Glory, Glory Hallelujah," and sings it with variations and war whoops inserted. How wide open her mouth is, how lovely her teeth. Such a lady should never die, as the French cab driver at Nice said of James Gordon Bennett.

The band plays "California Here I Come" and Texas starts a parade of delegations around the hall. A lady in a blue dress, speckled with white, carries the Texas banner. She has no hat, no marcel wave or makeup. The lady delegates as a rule can cook, run a house and know beauty parlors only from the outside. They need no beauty parlors.

Violently, with his gavel, Mr. Snell seems to be trying to stop, but really stimulating the howling that he started by mentioning the name of Hoover. The Texas banner is taken to the platform and waved—renewed howls of glee.

Then the Wisconsin banner appears on the platform. The Republicans "have been at war with them people," and that waving banner delights the yelling delegates. If only young Mr. La Follette had brought the banner up, but he did not.

What sounds like a gigantic band is really an ingenious, mechanical instrument playing, its sound much amplified. Artificial music, but the enthusiasm is genuine, while it lasts.

WHO WILL BE SENATOR?

The wise Mr. Seibold says Mr. Snell's speech is, among other things, a bid for the New York senatorship. It's a good bid. Republicans should be grateful to him for bringing this convention to life. But, these are wet days, and in the fall when New York elects a senator, public opinion will be wetter.

James Wadsworth, who was senator before and went out when prohibition came in, may establish a prior lien on New York, IF Senator Wagner can be beaten, which, at present, is improbable.

Finally, Mr. Snell is for the gold standard and PROSPERITY. We have the gold standard. How shall we recover the prosperity. Only generalities about that.

In a little while, the convention will adjourn until 9 o'clock this evening. During the afternoon, the State delegations will be asked to consider the prohibition plank now ready. This has never been done before. The custom is to hand the platform ready made and invite delegates to swallow it. You will read the plank, elsewhere.

It's a mistake about Will Rogers being so rich. His royalties, rents, syndicate profits, interest on bank balances have all suffered, as with the rest of us. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., recently in Chicago, is much richer than Mr. Rogers, who, if you asked him "where is your next million coming from," would have to answer "from Louis Mayer, I suppose, but I really don't know. These are terrible times."

Half past nine in the evening. The convention is called to order, the delegates having all read the Republican prohibition plank, are listening now to the reading of the platform. See it in other columns. James R. Garfield, son of President Garfield, is reading it.

The prohibition plank, which comes near the end does not please the wettest Republicans and it maddens the dry ones. But it does admit, with much hemming and hawing, that prohibition needs changing, that the people, even the Republicans, to whom the dry votes belong, demand a change.

PRESERVE WHAT?

Resubmission to the people the plank says, truly, would mean nothing. If every voter in the United States voted to cancel the Eighteenth Amendment, that would not have any effect. The Constitution can be changed by only constitutional procedure.

What the plank suggests not too clearly, is that each state be allowed to make its own prohibition law. The national government undertaking to protect all dry states in their dryness.

The plank says that things gained by prohibition must not be lost. What things are meant, do you suppose?

Prohibition has brought bootleggers and made of it an industry of billions, the only industry now really prosperous in the country.

Prohibition has brought whiskey and gin drinking by high school children with increased drunkenness and insanity, and has made it necessary to enlarge old prisons and insane asylums and build new ones.

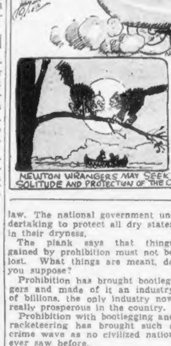
Republicans would not want to preserve any of these things "gained by prohibition."

The plank congratulates prohibition on abolishing the saloon, but says nothing of speakeasies, that in big cities have replaced saloons, five speakeasies for every saloon closed. Each speakeasy more dangerous than the old-fashioned saloon.

However, no matter how reluctantly, the Republican party admits that a change must come. It will come, slowly, perhaps, at the hands of Republicans, more swiftly and drastically, at the hands of Democrats.

The plank upholding the gold standard is applauded loudly. Not one in one hundred here could tell what the gold standard really means, or how you can have a gold standard, when all the gold in America would not pay off, in gold, the savings bank depositors of New York State alone. The big hall is full, no seats vacant.

President Hoover will be renominated today, the vice-presidential candidate also, perhaps.



JAMES R. GARFIELD of Ohio. What a time he had making his 15-minute speech in favor of the majority report on the prohibition plank, at midnight. He was halted a dozen times by gallery hooting. He is G. O. P. resolution committee head.

ALLEN DROPS DRY LAW

Can't Be Enforced, Ex-Gov. Decides

By JOHN T. LAMBERT

Chicago, Ill., June 16—Secretary of War Pat Hurley is being talked up for Vice-President. I asked him about it yesterday. "Under no circumstances," said he, "will I run against my old friend, Charlie Curtis."

Mayor Sinclair Weeks was present. His father, too, had been secretary of war.

Hurley told us Mrs. Hurley's father, Rear-Admiral Wilson, has reserved his grave in Arlington Cemetery at Washington and, when the end comes, will be laid to rest alongside John Wingate Weeks. They were members of the famous Annapolis class of 1888.

Ex-Governor Frank Allen, you may or may not be surprized to learn here, has changed his views about prohibition. Believes, like Fuller, that it just can't be enforced.

But Louis K. Liggett is not here yet, and will not be. His interest in the success of the G. O. P., under its present management being that hot, or cool.

Chairman Amos Taylor of the Republican state committee will not run for it again, having had enough troubles to last one man a lifetime.

Bayard Tuckerman has received more letters, telegrams and phone calls from back home than any other member of the delegation, demanding to know when, if ever, the delegation is going to look the prohibition issue squarely in the face.

Charlie Wheeler, who used to write for this newspaper from Washington and Chicago, went in to see Samuel Insull. "Some day, Charlie," said Insull, "you might be able to give a lift to my boys." This from a man who only a few months ago was worth $100,000,000.

Perhaps the most enthusiastic Hoover rooter in Chicago is Louis B. Mayer, the movie magnate, who sits as a member of the California delegation. Remember him? Well, you ought to. He started in Haverhill.

Mrs. Pauline Revere Thayer (we were too dull to think of it until just now) is a lineal descendant of Paul Revere. Which is one reason she would have liked a chance to vote for Dawes.

Walter R. Meins, of Roxbury, has thus far made the most capable speeches of the Massachusetts delegates. One nominating Butler for chairman, The other denouncing the League of Nations court. George Holden Tinkham will be glad to read this.

Lieut.-Gov. Youngman will not be pleased by this one: Both Fuller and Allen believe he just would not do for governor against Ely.

Harry Dooley dropped in to pay his respects. Of course you couldn't forget Harry. Ran against Ely for lieutenant-governor some years back, and finished aces high.

This column just couldn't be complete without telling you what happened 15 minutes ago. Fuller indorsed Allen again and Allen indorsed Fuller. It's beginning to sound like Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Sheehan.

FIVE OF MAINE'S 13 VOTES CAST FOR REPEAL

Other N. E. States Make Total of 57 to 36 Against the Hoover Plank

Chicago, June 16 (AP)—Maine, for more than three-quarters of a century a prohibition state, cast five of its 13 votes for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment at the Republican national convention early today.

They were among the 472 votes mustered in support of the minority repeal plank which was offered as a substitute for the resubmission proposal of the resolutions committee. The administration plank of the committee was upheld with 681 votes.

BAY STATE DIVIDED

The total New England vote favored repeal by 57 to 36.

The Massachusetts delegation divided almost evenly with 17 members against repeal and 16 for it. The Bay State delegation was the only one short its full strength. Only 33 of the 34 votes to which the state was entitled were cast, due to the absence of both delegates and one alternate in the Seventh District.

Of the other New England states New Hampshire alone threw her solid strength of 11 votes to the majority plank.

Connecticut gave its full 19 in backing Senator Bingham's repeal plan.

R. I., VERMONT "WET"

The two smallest N. E. state delegations, 8 from Rhode Island and nine from Vermont, shared the spotlight with those that launched the repeal drive and both delegations voted solidly for it.

Each sent a speaker to the rostrum. For Rhode Island, Ambrose Kennedy of Woonsocket, who, as a member of the resolutions committee, aided in drafting it, argued for repeal, while Vermont's speaker was Walter S. Fenton, Rutland lawyer, and chairman of the state delegation.

Assured of President Hoover's renomination, selection of a vice-presidential candidate remained as the only question still unsettled. Among those from Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Vermont there was uncertainty as to where their votes would go.

Massachusetts remained firm for its choice, former Governor Alvan T. Fuller, and Rhode Island stood by Vice-President Curtis. New Hampshire and Vermont marked time with the intention of casting their votes for whoever the President appeared to favor.

Here Is the G.O.P. Dry Law Plank Adopted at Meet

THE 18TH AMENDMENT

The Republican party has always stood and stands today for obedience to and enforcement of the law as the very foundation of orderly government and civilization. There can be no national security otherwise. The duty of the President of the United States and of the officers of the law is clear. The law must be enforced as they find it enacted by the people. To these courses of action we pledge our nominees.

The Republican party is and always has been the party of the Constitution. Nullification by non-observance by individuals or State action threatens the stability of government.

FORESAW CHANGES

While the Constitution makers sought a high degree of permanence, they foresaw the need of changes and provided for them.

Article V limits the proposals of amendments to two methods:

(1) Two-thirds of both Houses of Congress may propose amendments; or

(2) On aplication of the legislatures of two-thirds of the States a national convention shall be called by Congress to propose amendments.

Thereafter ratification must be handled in one of two ways:

(1) By the legislatures of three-fourths of the several states; or (2) by conventions held in three-fourths of the several states. Congress is given power to determine the mode of ratification.

Referendums without Constitutional sanction cannot furnish a decisive answer. Those who propose them innocently are deluded by false hopes; those who propose them knowingly are deceiving the people.

A nationwide controversy over the Eighteenth Amendment now distracts attention from the constructive solution of many pressing national problems. The principle of national prohibition as embodied in the amendment was supported and opposed by members of both great political parties. It was submitted to the states by members of Congress of different political faiths and ratified by state legislatures of different political majorities. It was not then and is not now a partisan political question.

Members of the Republican party hold different opinions with respect to it and no public official or member of the party should be pledged or forced to choose between his party affiliations and his honest convictions upon this question.

We do not favor a submission limited to the issue of retention or repeal. For the American nation never in its history has gone backward, and in this case the progress which has been thus far made must be preserved, while the evils must be eliminated.

LEAVES IT TO STATES

We, therefore, believe that the people should have an opportunity to pass upon a proposed amendment the provision of which, while retaining in the federal government power to preserve the gains already made in dealing with the evils inherent in the liquor traffic, shall allow states to deal with the problem as their citizens may determine, but subject always to the power of the federal government to protect those states where prohibition may exist and safeguard our citizens everywhere from the return of the saloon and attendant abuses.

Such an amendment should be promptly submitted to the states by Congress, to be acted upon by state conventions called for that sole purpose in accordance with the provisions of article V of the Constitution and adequately safeguarded so as to be truly representative.

BUTLER TO STOP ANY STAMPEDE TO COOLIDGE

Ex-Senator Has Letter From Former President Authorizing Action

By JOHN T. LAMBERT

Chicago Stadium, June 16—Foreseeing the possibility of an attempt to stampede the convention for him, Calvin Coolidge has sent definite word here that he is not a candidate for President and would decline the nomination if it were voted him.

Coolidge's letter is in the hands of former Senator William M. Butler of Massachusetts, who managed Coolidge's campaign for President in 1924.

John T. Lambert

In the letter Coolidge not only declares he is not a candidate but he authorizes Butler to take any action and to adopt any means to impress upon the convention that he would refuse the nomination.

It is understood that Butler is authorized to read the letter to the convention if any emergency requires it.

RECEIVED LAST FRIDAY

I today asked Butler if any instructions from Coolidge existed.

"Yes," he replied, "I have a letter.

"I do not believe I should make it public. There is no emergency requiring me to do so."

He said he had received the letter from Mr. Coolidge last Friday, about 48 hours before Butler departed from Boston for the convention.

Butler's admission of the existence of the letter was made to the Boston Evening American shortly before the convention assembled for the session at which President Hoover was to be renominated.

Angered by charges of pussyfooting, the Bay State delegates presented a broken front when the roll was called on prohibition early today after the all-night battle.

The delegation was split almost exactly in two, 16 for repeal and 17 against.

BOOTH IRRITATED

The first caucus was held late yesterday afternoon in the delegation headquarters in the Stevens Hotel. Chairman George F. Booth declared he was "annoyed and irritated" by the failure of ex-Senator William M. Butler to accept instructions from the delegates before he entered the conclaves of the national resolutions committee.

"It is the privilege and right of the delegates," he said, "to discuss and settle any problem affecting their commonwealth, their constituents and their country.

"They tell us prohibition is fraught with danger: that it is a tinderbox. Well, if you have any courage in your systems, you are going to settle this question with evasion."

Representative Albert F. Bigelow, of Brookline, an exemplar of the repeal sentiment of the Bay State, declared that "something must be done by us and that something must not be pussyfooting."

He suggested that they vote for straight out repeal and return the liquor authority to the states to settle in their own way according to their own consciences.

HOOVER AID BALKS

Representative Christian A. Herter, friend of Hoover, declared that the ultimate solution no doubt would be submission of the problem to state conventions for the sole purpose of considering repeal.

"Do we have a wet delegation or a dry delegation here or a half and half delegation?" demanded former Congressman George R. Stobbs of Worcester.

"By all means we ought to settle whether we want repeal or no change from the existing conditions," suggested Speaker Leverett Saltonstall of the Massachusetts House of Representatives.

The first and formidable objection to action came from John Richardson, who is President Hoover's personal political representative in Massachusetts and who defeated Butler for the national committee post.

"This is a stupid performance," he said, "to put members on the spot. Some of them hold office and others may be candidates in the future, and someone here may have this vote thrown up against him in the future. I favor submission in some form and I am not particular about the form."

With all chance of a harmonious understanding being reached, Chairman Booth invited all the delegates to be his guests at a caucus luncheon called in the Hotel Stevens two hours before the convention assembled.

Butler arrived for this caucus He brought with him a copy of the majority plank. He said from the statements made in the resolutions committee by Secretary of the Treasury Mills, there was every reason to assume the majority plank had the approval of President Hoover.

Another Claimant for Wendel Fortune

New York, June 16—Another claimant to the vast Wendel fortune, settlement of which has been pending for almost a year, has appeared in the person of Mrs. Effie Bush of Alameda, Cal.

Mrs. Bush

Mrs. Bush is one of the six claimants from the West known as the Barney group.

With the exception of Grace MacQuarrie of San Francisco, it is said that the group has participated in the settlement between the five principal legatees under the will of the late Miss Ella Wendel and five of the eight outstanding claimants.

Schenck's Offers Yacht for Hire at $100 Per Day

Hollywood, June 16—The cost of upkeep of Joseph Schenck's sailing boat, "Invader," is $5000 a month while the film executive is using it—but only $4000 a month while it is not in operation.

Joseph Schenck

Mr. Schenck advertises that the boat may be rented for $100 a day, not an exorbitant price for a vessel more than 120 feet long and completely equipped with all luxuries.

Recently Robert Montgomery and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., took the boat on these terms, cruising for ten days up and down the coast of Southern California.

And if Marconi, or Edison, or Newton himself sat there in modern clothes, no one would question the statement "they come from Kansas."

We rarely recognize genius or exceptional ability until we see it in history books. In the writings of Leonardo Da Vinci, greatest intellect of his day, you find no mention of Columbus, although that navigator crossed the Atlantic and came back while Leonardo was in his prime. He could not see Columbus' greatness, Columbus would not have seen him.

Mr. Teagle, head of Standard Oil of New Jersey, adopts a five-day week to give increased employment. Five days' work and pay for many is better than six days for a few. And when prosperity comes creeping back, the five-day week may remain, carrying six days' wages, to remind workers that in all evil there is some good.

Two faces on the convention floor are always smiling, with cheerfulness that is genuine. One belongs to Governor Rolph of California. Its vitality and fine color are delightful You will want to know that he follows daily the prescription of old Dr. Don Francisco, of Los Angeles, "a large glass of orange juice with half a lemon squeezed into it." Different vitamins live in oranges and lemons.

PRESIDENT OF BANK FIGHTS THIEF PAROLE

Framingham Official Opposes Plea of Ex-Treasurer in Larceny of $75,000

"I would take my hat off to a highwayman in comparison to this man."

In this vigorous language, Enos H. Bigelow, president of the Framingham Trust Co., today opposed a commutation of sentence for Fred W. Pope, former treasurer of the Framingham bank at a hearing before the state parole board.

Pope was sentenced Dec. 4, 1929 to six to seven years in state prison for the larceny of $75,000 of the bank's funds.

CALLS CRIME SHOCKING

Bigelow declared that Pope's crime "shocked the whole community and ruined its confidence in men of high standing." He said that he had repeatedly asked Pope to tell him the truth about the larceny but had met with refusals.

Atty. Richard W. Hale of Boston, for the prisoner, contended that justice had been served by Pope's confinement for two and a half years.

Pope declared that there was a great many Liberty bonds left around the counters of the bank because of crowded conditions. He said he learned of a shortage of $20,000 in these securities, but "lacked the courage to tell the directors"—and covered it up with funds from the savings accounts.

IN DARK ON AMOUNT.

When asked what he had done with the rest of the $75,000, Pope said he couldn't understand how it could have been so much.

He said that the shortage was first discovered by another employe. Pope testified that the stock market was going up at the time and he thought he could raise the difference. Then he said he took more and invested it in stocks and bonds.

"How much did you take?" asked Chairman Frank A. Brooks.

"I don't think it could be more than $35,000," Pope replied.

PAIR GET $40 IN STORE HOLDUP

Two gunmen entered a chain store at 1062 Washington st., South End, today, force dJohn Baylor, 38, the manager, into a back room, took $40 from the cash register, and escaped in an auto.

Baylor, who lives in Alexander st., Dorchester, was alone in the store when the two entered. Producing guns, they ordered him into the back room, with a warning to make no outcry.

By agreement of counsel Mrs. McLaughlin renounced $10,000 for an annuity, $400 0in cash and an automobile, which, with the ring, were bequeathed her in his $30,000 will by the aged Lowell manufacturer.

Announcement of the settlement was made in Middlesex Probate court where Mrs. Louise R. Auerback of New York, Boardman's only daughter, has been contesting the will, charging undue influence on the part of Mrs. McLaughlin and her husband, John P. McLaughlin.

HUSBAND GETS CASH

As part of the agreement Mrs. McLaughlin was allowed to retain the diamond ring as a gift made before death, and the bequest to her husband was permitted to stand.

The money which Mrs. McLaughlin gave up goes into the residue of the estate which is bequeathed to Mrs. Auerback. Judge Campbell will allow the will as though the clause to Mrs. McLaughlin were not included.

WOMAN DENIES LOVE

She also denied having admitted to Dr. Krauss of Boylston st., the aged man's physician, she had had such relations.

Earlier Dr. Krauss testified that Boardman had told him of processions when the latter and Mrs. McLaughlin went to hotels together but in spite of his warnings that Boardman was a sick man, Dr. Krauss testified, the latter insisted he be given "pep" and stated he did not want Mrs. McLaughlin to know he was not well. He died at the age of 74.

LITTLEFIELD IS FOUND GUILTY OF CHARGE

Woman in Case Gets a Delay as City Official Is Put on Probation

A wife's literal acceptance of her alleged love rival's invitation led to the arrest and arraignment today of Gerrish Littlefield, Malden city official.

He was found guilty of a serious charge involving a South End woman and was given a suspended four months' jail sentence and placed on probation for six months by Judge Dow in Municipal court.

Mrs. Emily Littlefield ordered the raid on her husband and Mrs. Jeanette Everett in the woman's apartment in Massachusetts ave. They were found when police of the East Dedham st. station and private detectives entered.

Mrs. Littlefield, who had cautioned her husband against the South End woman and reprimanded Mrs. Everett also, informed police she had been told by her:

"If you ever find me with your husband, you can have us both arrested."

Mrs. Littlefield took the suggestion and with her son, Gerrish, Jr., kept vigil over the South End apartment early today.

After a wait of several hours, she ordered police to arrest her husband if they found him in the woman's home.

The case against Mrs. Everett was continued for one week when she entered a not-guilty plea.

Mrs. Littlefield told police her husband excused his absence by club attendance excuses when she accused him of meeting Mrs. Everett.

GUNMAN IS HELD IN ASSAULTS

Albert C. Sanders, 40, of Gordon st., Allston, was held in $4000 for the Suffolk grand jury today by Judge Murray in municipal court on two charges of assault with intent to kill.

He was confronted by his two alleged victims, Mrs. Katherine K. Sullivan, 45, proprietress of a beauty shop in Falmouth st., Back Bay, and Samuel Freedman of the same address.

Mrs. Sullivan came to court attended by a physician and a nurse. She was on the verge of hysteria. She claimed she answered the front doorbell on the night of May 23 and found a man crouched in the vestibule. He pushed his way in and when she attempted to bar him she claims he shot her in the arm. Freedman claims Sanders fired twice at him after forcing his way into the apartment. Both bullets missed.

PET DOG FIGHT ON IN COURT

Affection for his mongrel dog landed Frank B. Smedile, 25, a law student, in Central Municipal Court today. Smedile and a neighbor, Edward Semonda, both of whom live in Adams st., Roxbury, were before Judge Murray charged with assaulting agents of the Animal Rescue League.

There was a "free-for-all" fight yesterday because a crew of stray dog catchers from the Animal Rescue League took Smedile's pet, which Smedile says was licensed. The student said Semonda took him to the league headquarters on Carver st. in his car to convey the captured dog home.

SAYS HE WAS HIT

He said when he demanded return of his pet he was pushed out and attacked and was forced to defend himself.

Semonda claims he was assaulted by several agents of the league and had to fight to save himself. The agents of the league claim the defendants attacked them.

When Judge Murray saw the squad of witnesses lined up, he turned to Clerk James Milward and said:

"What, have they called out the fire department?"

Noting that the complaint against Semonda, in addition to charging him with assault and battery on Agent Archibald McDonald, cited that a lottery slip had been found on his person, Judge Murray turned to the defendants and asked:

PLAY POKER, TOO

"Do you both play poker?" Both nodded rather sheepishly. Then the court asked some of the police if they played poker and one or two of them chirped, "When we've got the price."

Spectators snickered. The "dog war" was continued until July 6 owing to the fact that Judge Daniel J. Casey, counsel for the accused, was occupied in another court.

Smedile is charged with assault and battery on Agent Henry Rolfe. The student, assured that his dog was still alive, said he planned steps to recover it at once.

G. O. P. PLATFORM STANDS BY HOOVER; OFFERS LITTLE HOPE TO WET FOLLOWERS

President Credited With Softening Blow of Economic Collapse

By KENNETH CLARK

Chicago, June 16—(US)—War against the economic depression, coupled with a liberalized prohibition policy, was promised the American people in the 1932 Republican national platform.

The platform, drafted after a two-day fight over the liquor issue, sang the praises of President Hoover and cited his record of accomplishments in softening the economic blow.

On the President's record the platform rested, offering little new toward leading the nation out of the slump. The party said:

Against Any Plank Calling for Repeal

"The supremely important problem that challenges our citizens and government alike is to break the back of the depression, to restore the economic life of the nation and to bring encouragement and relief to the thousands of American families that are sorely afflicted.

"To that task we pledge all that our party possesses in capacity, leadership, resourcefulness and ability."

The prohibition plank, pleasing neither the militant drys or anti-prohibitionists, recommended an amendment to the 18th Amendment permitting states to restore liquor subject, however, to the control and regulation of Congress. The party opposed resubmission for repeal.

LEADERSHIP

President Hoover's constructive program, including the one-year debt moratorium, the National Credit Association, the Railroad Credit Corporation, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, increased capitalization of federal land banks, enlargement of discount facilities of the federal land banks, enlargement of discount facilities of the Federal Reserve System, and recommendations for relief and building loans through the Finance Corporation, constitute "an attack on a broad front, with far-reaching objectives, but entailing no danger to the budget. The Democratic program, on the other hand, contemplates a heavy expenditure of public funds, a budget unbalanced on a large scale, with a doubtful attainment of at best a strictly limited objective."

"The Republican party . . . is opposed to the federal government entering directly into the field of private charity and direct relief to the individual." The party indorses the President's recommendation to Congress "to create an emergency relief fund to be loaned temporarily to any state on a showing of actual need and temporary failure of its financial resources."

PUBLIC ECONOMY

"We urge prompt and drastic reduction of public expenditure and resistance to every appropriation not demonstrably necessary to the performance of the essential functions of government, national or local."

THE DOLLAR

"The Republican party established and will continue to uphold the gold standard."

BANKING SYSTEM

There is need for revision of banking laws on a sounder basis to protect the depositing public, with closer examination and reports from banking affiliates of Federal Reserve members.

INTERNATIONAL

Urges participation in conferences relating to monetary questions, including silver, exchange problems and commodity prices.

LOAN DISCOUNT

"We pledge that the measures creating a home loan discount system will be pressed in Congress until adopted." Measures are necessary to check the "disturbing trend away from home ownership."

AGRICULTURE

Pledges further aid through the federal farm board, protective tariff duties for agriculture, assistance to co-operative marketing associations, a national policy of land utilization and reconsideration of tax systems, federal, state and local, with a view to relieving unjust burdens. The party futher promises aid to solve the problem of controlling production in such volume as will balance supply with demand. This is declared to be the "fundamental problem of American agriculture."

TARIFF

"We favor extension of the general Republican principle of tariff protection to our natural resource industries, including the products of our farms, forests, mines and oil wells, with compensatory duties on the manufactured and refined products thereof."

VETERANS

Pledges full protection to those veterans incapacitated by war service, but urges all possible economies "without departing from our purpose to provide on a sound basis full and adequate relief for our service disabled men, their widows and orphans." The plank does not mention cash payment of the bonus.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS

Pledges settlement of international difficulties by conciliation and methods of law, without "alliances or foreign partnerships."

PACIFIC CONDITIONS

"We favor enactment by Congress of a measure that will authorize our government to call or participate in an international conference in case of any threat of non-fulfillment of Article 2 of the treaty of Paris (Kellogg-Briand pact)."

LEAGUE COURT

Favors American entry into the League tribunal.

ARMAMENT REDUCTION

"Maintenance of our navy on the basis of parity with any nation is a fundamental policy to which the Republican party is committed. While in the interest of necessary government retrenchment, humanity and relief of the taxpayer we shall continue to exert our full influence upon the nations of the world in the cause of reduction of arms, we do not propose to reduce our navy defenses below that of any other nation."

NATIONAL DEFENSE

"We support the essential principles of the national defense act as amended in 1926 and by the air corps act of 1925, and believe that the army has through successive reductions, accomplished in the last 12 years, reached the irreducible minimum consistent with the self-reliance, self-respect and security of this country."

WAGES AND WORK

Favors shorter work week and shorter work day, legislation to stimulate home building, continuance of restricted immigration, recognition of the right of collective bargaining, and unemployment aid through the employment service in the labor department."

PUBLIC UTILITIES

Urges legislation to authorize the federal power commission "to regulate the charges for electric current when transmitted across state lines."

RIVER SEAWAY

CRIME

"We favor enactment of rigid federal laws that will aid the states in stamping out the activities of gangsters, racketeers and kidnapers,

NARCOTICS

"The Republican party pledges itself to continue the present relentless warfare against the illicit narcotic traffic and the spread of the curse of drug addiction among our people."

HAWAIIAN STATUS

"We believe that the existing status of self-government which for many years has been enjoyed by the citizens of the territory of Hawaii should be maintained, and that officials appointed to administer the government should be bona-fide residents of the territory."

DEMOCRATIC FAILURE

"The vagaries of the present Democratic House of Representatives offer characteristic and appalling proof of the existing incapacity of that party for leadership in a national crisis."

PARTY GOVERNMENT

"Only by united party action can consistent, well planned and wholesome legislative programs be enacted." Party irregularity in Congress was condemned.

G. O. P. CONTROL

Republican control of the federal government "will insure the orderly recovery of the country and that return to prosperous days which every American so ardently desires."

$10,000 HOLDUP IN WEBSTER

leg of their flight was toward Worcester.

The stolen currency was in shipment from the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston to the First National Bank of Webster and had just been carried out of the post-office to a taxi used by the Webster bank.

"WE'LL SHOOT YOU."

Ernest Wilson, teller of the Webster bank, and Patrolman Andrew McIntosh had just emerged from the postoffice carrying the bank shipment in two sacks when the bandit car sped up and stopped with a screech of brakes behind the taxi, which was driven by Vernon Kewell.

Four men, all in shirtsleeves, leaped from the bandits' machine. Two swung shotguns and the others brandished automatic pistols.

"If you say a word, we'll shoot your brains out!" the leader of the robber gang warned.

They disarmed McIntosh, seized the sacks containing the bills, tossed them into their car, leaped in and started up the main street, north, in the direction of Worcester.

As they sped away they fired one shot which discouraged pursuit.

A teletype message flashed to all police stations said the registration plates on the bandit car were issued to Emilio Anzaloe of Thacher st., North End.

Anzaloe's brother, Bartillio, used the car Tuesday night and while at Norumbega Park in the plates were stolen. The theft was reported to Metropolitan police immediately after its discovery, Boston police learned.

WELL-PLOTTED CRIME

The money stolen was all in new bills, being sent to replace worn currency.

The robbery, perfectly timed, had apparently been planned after several weeks of watching the bank men. Wilson, with Patrolman McIntosh, has been going to the post-office every Thursday at approximately the same hour to fetch the Federal Reserve shipment, which is sent from Boston to Webster by mail.

Fair Alice, Chairless Dolly in Brother and Sister Acts

—By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER—

Chicago, June 16.

When Theodore Roosevelt was patriarch of the land a little girl romped around the White House.

That was more than 30 years ago and Alice Roosevelt Longworth still thinks she is in rompers.

If the flashlights don't deceive us, Alice is a very important personage. Reading from left to right you will always see Alice leading the flying wedge.

She is one of the hundreds of shrill politicians in Chicago of the lingerie sex. They mean something in the ultimate scheme of politics. When any question is to be decided and the nation's fate hangs on the answer, it all goes back to the days when the ward leader banged on the table and yelled, "See what the girls in the back room will have."

Alice is as prominent as the handles on a small loving cup.

But she is getting plenty of competition from a lady who knows what she wants and where it is.

You've guessed it. Dolly Chairless Gann has carried that Washington social feud to Chicago and is here to smite Alice, hip and thigh.

The girls haven't met yet. When they do we don't want to be in an egg shell between these two icebergs.

Alice and Dolly have finally something in common. Both of them are carrying the banner for their brothers.

Alice wants her brother, Teddy, to grab the vice-presidential concession. It ain't much but it entitles the holder to sell souvenir postcards on the White House porch. Teddy is far away in the land of the Igorote, the Tagalog and the Moro and he would like to come home even in political steerage.

Dolly thinks her brother, Curtis, is entitled to another wild fling in national oblivion. She digits with sisterly pride to his record. And she's right. He hasn't done a thing.
That's perfect.

If, by any chance, the two gals meet face to powder, you would probably hear something like this:

Alice: "Slap my face and reduce my alimony, if it ain't good old Dolly Gray. Put it thar, stranger."

Dolly: "Well, scramble my eggs and cut my throat, if it ain't little Alice-Blue-Gown. Shake, pal, and break clean."

Alice: "I ain't seen you since that big dinner in Washington. And I didn't see you then. Did you find a seat?"

Alice: "You must drop in and see us some day."

Dolly: "Sorry, I never go across the railroad tracks. Whatcha doing in Chicago?"

Alice: "I'm arranging the list of guests for the next victory dinner of the starving Chinese. I hope you will be able to be present, dearie."

Dolly: "I'll be out of town if I have to ride a bicycle. What have you been doing with your figure, honey, you look like a bumper wheat crop. I hope you haven't been too sick."

Alice: "You're such a lovable character, Dolly. If I had a gun in my hand I'd slap your face. Have you grabbed a seat anywhere recently."

Dolly: "Yes, had a big affair over in the waiting room at the Union depot. I had a whole bench to myself. How's your brother?"

Alice: "He went from Porto Rico to the Philippines. He loves to travel."

Dolly: "Say, that guy has been on more islands than Napoleon."

Alice: "How's tha brother of yours? They tell me he wants to be V.-P. again so he can send his salary to the conscience fund."

Dolly: "Curtis is feeling fine, even if nobody asks him. They tell me your brother, Teddy, made the first sensible speech of his career last week. He asked for another plate of soup."

Alice: "Yeah, the boy's getting good. If you ever happen to be in Washington again call in at the White House. Get yourself a delivery wagon and crash the tradesman's entrance. So long, Bright Eyes."

Dolly: "Till it wilted I wore it, I'll always adore it, my sweet little Alice-Blue-Gown."

Alice: "Goodby, Dolly, I must leave you, though it breaks my heart to go. Something tells me I am needed at the front to fight the foe."

BIG NOISE COVERS SECRETS OF G.O.P. MEET

By ELSIE ROBINSON

ries—or listen to them. They are not even here to nominate a President. They are here to maintain the status quo. And the best thing the status quo doesn't want is a big story messing up its program.

Big stories there are—the nation is rocking with them—big stories of hunger—desolation—empty homes and distressed towns—and ragged thousands on the march to find relief.

But you won't hear any of those big stories here—

Even though millions of Republicans are suffering from that hunger—are joining in those marches—are looking to the convention for relief—you'll not hear their story here.

FOR THE STATUS QUO MUST BE MAINTAINED — AND HOW CAN IT BE MAINTAINED IF SOMEONE GETS UP AND BLURTS OUT THE GOSHAWFUL TRUTH?

Trot Out Old Slogans and Dress Them Up

And so instead, they've dusted off all the good, ole shibboleths . . . taken the tried 'n' true slogans out of the moth balls—draped them up with bunting—tuned in the bands—and there you are.

And in the meantime what's happening outside? You know the story as well as I. Whether you're a Republican, a Democrat or a nature-food-nudist you know that story by heart. You've been reading its "running copy" every hour of every day for the last three years. And each day you've said—

"Something must happen."

But nothing has happened. And nothing is happening now.

Plenty of noise—yes. They staged a mob scene that would have done Hollywood justice this morning. Yelled themselves red in the face. Paraded around waving flags, singing songs, waving state banners—

But when it all was over what had happened?

Had they voted to put a single business back on its feet? Had they "rescued" a single farm? Sent a nickel of relief money to a single frantic State?

No, they hadn't.

Then what were the cheers all about?

They were about the status quo. They were giving a marching vote for the policy which has directed this country for the last four years—which they desired to have maintained for four years longer. Now, there—regardless of your political party—is something for you to think about. Something mighty serious.

IN THE FACE OF ALL THAT YOU AND I KNOW ABOUT THE ACTUAL CONDITION OF THIS COUNTRY, THESE DELEGATES HAVE DETERMINED TO IGNORE THAT CONDITION AND TO MAINTAIN THE STATUS QUO.

Well—What's the answer?

Voice and Need of America Unheard

Maybe, they're right. Maybe there isn't enough suffering in this country to deserve serious consideration at this convention. Maybe all these tales of tragic need are just "enemy ballyhoo." Maybe we are still enjoying prosperity and are just kidding ourselves that we're not. And maybe we don't need a change.

For that is exactly what all this cheering amounts to; that's why there is this satisfied silence behind the hiccoughs and the ballyhoo.

But how do YOU feel about it—YOU who have probably voted the straight Republican ticket, man 'n' boy, for the last 50 years?

If you were running this show would you act as if everything was jake? Would you set your face and shut your mouth against a discussion of the truth?

Or would you crash that bunting draped platform and demand, with every ounce of energy in you, that your party open the door to the voice and the need of America?

You heard it over the radio—yes? That roar-leaping across the miles—crashing, smashing the silence of the night—

Heard it but couldn't see it—

Then get this.

Eyes Like Agates, Mouth Like Hinge

Faces, momentarily lost in churning veils of smoke—momentarily flashing out in quivering sheets of brightness, as the huge arcs swept blazing, clashing, flaming from floor to roof.

A DRY AND A WET. Over on the left we have F. Scott McBride, secretary Anti-Saloon League. The other Chicago visitor is Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler. He urged the adoption of minority report on prohibition plank.

And above that pit of faces—

Hanging suspended in that zone of darkness, in that flash of flame—another face.

Just that one face—hanging like a mask framed in darkness and flame—with the thousands of eyes peering at it, leaping up at it—

That one small face, fixed, fierce, indomitable as death—suspended there in the darkness and fury of its own power—

And out of that face words.

Words that have become commonplaces—

Words that have become a jest—a laugh—a yawn—

Words that, you'd swear, had been rendered forever small and silly—

Yet suddenly issuing from that face, became something new—different—terrible—

The hinged mouth moving—

The lights flashing—

The faces leaping—out of the darkness into the brightness—out of the silence into sound—

Slight at first.

A rustling, a breathing, a low, far snarling—And then, from that mouth, words short, sharp as blows—

That Hell Is Still Before Speaker's Power

YAA-A-A-A—WITH A SCREAM—WITH A CRASH THE ROAR BROKE—

BOOOOO-OO-OO-OOOOOO!

GRR-GRR-RR-RR!

Floors seething—walls rocking—that pit of human faces, turned to one shrieking, yelling bedlam—

Madness of lights crashing, crashing—

Bedlam of voices howling, yowling—

Hell! Hell if hate unloosed has ever made a hell—

And yet—

Quiet as death—

Cold as the grave—

Scornful as God—

THERE THAT FACE HUNG.

Spoke once—

Gave way.

Spoke twice—

Gave way.

Spoke thrice—

And—incredible—impossible—yet there it happened—

These voices stilled. Those faces retreated.

THAT HELL WAS STILL.

AND UNMOVED. UNFALTERING. IN THE FACE OF MASSED MURDER, THAT MOUTH SPOKE ON.

Vote dry or wet as you will.

Call prohibitionists fanatics if you choose.

There for all to see, was a miracle—

The one, surpassing, tremendous miracle—

THE POWER OF A HUMAN MIND—BELIEVING IN ITSELF—SURE OF ITSELF AS OF GOD!

BARLEYCORN CHEERED, SAYS GIBBONS

By FLOYD GIBBONS

started over old John's relationship to the Republican party.

It was easy to see that the G. O. P. family didn't relish his homecoming. Senator Garfield's resolutions committee—that's the one that made the platform—put him way down in the list of the country's problems.

He was mentioned only after kidnapers and gangsters had been read out of the party and the Kellogg pact had been discussed.

Senator Garfield made a good show of it. After he had listed all the things the country will not have to worry about if Mr. Hoover is re-elected, he just stopped a second, looked the microphone in the eye and said:

"The Eighteenth Amendment."

The Ohio senator is short, gray-fish haired, spare, square-jawed and a typical simple life liver. You could tell how dry he was by looking at him. You could also tell that he knew he was walking right into the face of the guns when he jerked out those words—"the Eighteenth Amendment."

Those blue shirted electricians, sweltering in the control boxes heard it. They jerked back the levers and the spots roared down with the ferocity of noonday sunlight in July.

Wets Are Beaten by Hoover Steam Roller

The reading went on. It finished with the plank shipped in excelsior from Washington, with orders to put it over, no matter how.

A roar of boos went up. The wet states milled and swung the beer pails and steins they had waved in the face of the administration cohorts on the platform.

Senator Bingham, champion of the wets sprang up, white haired and suave. Slammed his short absolute repeal plank on the desk and drew cheers.

But the wet contingent's enthusiasm was not convincing. They had seen the hour and heard the owl. They had also seen and read the handwriting on the wall. They had been told it was either their necks or Mr Hoover's. Repeal or victory. Party loyalty or get off te band wagon. They couldn't have both.

ROGERS AND GIBBONS. Two talented writers, Will Rogers and Floyd Gibbons, swap stories—smile—laugh—and write on U. O. P. doings in Chicago. You read the interesting accounts from typewriter of Floyd Gibbons, Globe Trotter, in the Boston Evening American.

And the repealists didn't have both. They voted loudly and bravely some 400 of them, for the minority report. But six hundred-odd wheel horses strained in the harness and pulled the administration's one-half-of-one-per-cent-wet plank through to victory.

They knew it before the vote was taken. They knew it when the resolutions' committee steamrollered the imported Washington bill through in the afternoon.

Yesterday morning's session of the Chicago convention was held on Pennsylvania ave. in Washington, D. C., as usual. Maybe on the medicine ball court. No, it couldn't have been there. That's too far from the telephone.

You see, a lot of delegates made a mistake. They thought the convention was being held here in the Chicago Stadium. And it isn't being held here at all. This is just the light conversation, band music and elocution department of the real convention. That's being held in Washington.

Yes, sir. This is the first long-distance telephone convention in history. The next one will be held in television.

Then, on top of all those telephone calls, a carload of blueprints, maps and other directions that engineers know how to make arrived yesterday. That's so the delegates here won't go wrong. Won't say the wrong things.

If they want to talk about anything, especially out on the open floor, they've got to look at the blue prints. If they want to point with pride, why, the blue prints will show them the way. And if they want to view with alarm, they look it up to make sure they're being alarmed about the right thing.

The boys and girls were all sitting around listening to band music through the loud speakers when smiling Lea Dickinson, the temporary chairman, hammered for order. Lea looked them over—sort of indulgently—like a lot of unruly boys.

Then he said, now come on, folks. You've been standing around talking about how to run the government. Now let's sit down. Didn't say "and stay seated," but the delegates gathered something like that.

"Well, the Chicago branch convention quieted down and carried out order number one. That was the one about steam rolling some of those delegates who had government jobs and worked at them instead of getting into politics.

So they were steam rolled.

Then He Mentions Hoover Casually

Then they elected Congressman Bertram Snell permanent chairman. Can't understand how the cameramen knew he was going to be elected, but they had him up on the speaker's platform shooting flashlights of him holding the gavel long before the convention started.

You know you can't run off a convention without a parade of the state's standards. It's just like tearing up the goal posts after a football game.

There hadn't been any pep up to that time so the big chiefs got out the book of rules and passed the word along. Bert Snell waded into his speech, and down a few paragraphs he mentioned the name of Mr. Hoover—not with gestures or anything—just casual-like.

Over in the Arizona sector, somebody jumped up and shouldered a standard and started a demonstration that lasted, off and on, with rests and pauses and a little prodding, for 18 minutes and 30 seconds.

Right next to me in the press box a little gal reporter, who was seeing her first convention, dove smack over the railing. Landed on the neck of an Arizona delegate. Well, he lost interest in the campaign that minute, because she was a pretty little gal reporter.

Well, the delegates kept on marching. Music starting them up whenever they stopped. Once the band played "I've Been Workin' on the Railroad." And one of the boys who played the stock market said to me, "That's the theme song of the Missouri Pacific Railroad. Written by the Wall st. bankers."

Chairman Snell finally got tired of the row he'd started by praising Mr. Hoover. Started to gavel the crowd to order. But it didn't look as if he were gaveling as hard as he could. Anyway, he didn't break the gavel, like Jack Garner does in the House of Representatives.

Pretty soon the chairman got started again on his speech. Tried another Hoover bombshell; said something real nice about him this time. Said the country will not strike down the pilot who's keeping an eternal vigil. Changed that word "eternal" to "for three years."

But the delegates were all worn out with the first demonstration—the one that was requested. So they just clapped their hands.

That second big speech of the convention hadn't boosted the enthusiasm of the whole show much higher than it was after the first day.

Everybody was waiting. Waiting to see how far the bitter-end wets and drys would go when the liquor fight hit the convention floor.

And as they filed out red-coated newsboys greeted them with news they hadn't heard about inside the stadium. The resolutions committee had voted on a wet plank. There it was in the headlines.

The newsboys screamed, "We get whiskey," is what they were saying.

G. O. P. PREFERS PARTY TO HOOVER

By LOUIS SEIBOLD.

Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.

Chicago, June 16 (U.S.)—Successive reactionary triumphs in convention maneuvering has clearly revealed one overshadowing decision.

The Old Guard element, having definitely perpetuated its control of the organization machinery, is determined that the Republican party shall survive the Hoover administration.

If Hoover is beaten in November his policies will be immediately discarded and the retreat will find the morale of the standpatters of McKinley and Taft days unimpaired.

The leaders who are compelled by habit and tradition to renominate Hoover and absorb his policies last night found reason for gratification in the working out of their plans.

Louis Seibold

PROGRESSIVES LOST.

The Progressive element which Hoover cultivated assiduously had to be content with what the dominant reactionary clique threw its way.

The Republican program which the convention debated last night is in phrasing and intent the apotheosis of reaction. There isn't a single word in it reminiscent of the Roosevelt-Bull Moose doctrines.

At every stage of the conflict over the party platform (with the exception of prohibition) the determination of the Old Guard was visible. Having won, the chances are that Mr. Hoover will have to make a great many more concessions to the straight goods politicians in his party than he has done up to date.

PLEA TO CONSERVATIVES

There is accurate information to confirm the statement that Hoover preferred a more moderate and temperate course. The professionals, holding his fate in their hands, decreed otherwise. They made it plain to him that they would not tolerate temporizing with "sacred" Republican issues, always designed to snare the conservative vote.

This is why the platform was constructed with the sole idea of returning to first principles and thereby pinning the stand-pat label on the national ticket. Vague and indefinite social reforms calculated to give offense to the financial and manufacturing interests were entirely discarded.

Most of the standpat leaders who are congratulating themselves on the successful working out of this line of strategy are convinced that the Democrats will go radical, as they did under the leadership of Bryan.

Hence, they believe that the reactionary formula which they have put through will give their party a powerful weapon with which to meet the opposition in November.

Contrary to the claims of Hoover's supporters that he personally dictated the major features of the Republican program, the reverse is actually the case.

The President was alert enough to see which way the party cat was jumping and to go along with it. His first awakening was over the irritating prohibition problem. It was brought about by the bold stand taken by most of the state leaders and members of the national committee.

The President was bluntly informed that outright endorsement of his own dry view on prohibition would provoke an explosion that might cost him the Presidency.

The same line of reasoning was applied to the treatment of economic problems on which the standpat element aggressively asserted its right to put its brand.

The phrasing of planks dealing with business affairs and the implied protection of financial interests was dictated by the manifest determination of the Old Guard element to cuddle up to "big business."

HOOVER SURRENDERS

When the Republican hosts first gathered, the President's shock forces thought they were going to have everything their own way. The members of it assumed a most patronizing attitude toward State leaders, delegates and members of the national committee. That was speedily changed.

The extent to which the President's spokesmen were compelled to revise their strategy and make concessions to the opposition may never be revealed.

On the surface the face of the administration was saved. The actual fact is that Hoover and his wing of the party surrendered on several important points (probably distasteful to him and that the label he will have to wear will bear the indelible print of a standpat Republican machine, determined to save itself regardless of his own political fortunes.

MRS. M'CORMICK JOINS WETS

Chicago, June 16 (US)—Government control of the liquor business was advocated by Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick in a statement issued here.

In this she went a step further than her brother John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who announced a week ago that he favored repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. He suggested no method of controlling the traffic, but scored the evils of the present laws.

In her brief statement Mrs. McCormick said:

"I believe in government ownership of all alcohol; the government to have the right to control the quantity and quality of alcohol manufactured, and the method of its sale and distribution, and the government to receive the revenues from its sale."

She declined to comment further on her statement, merely explaining she meant all forms of intoxicating beverages by the word alcohol.

Dolly Again Victor in Tilt With Alice

Not once, but twice has she fought her brother Charlie's battles, and not once but twice has she been victor. Early today it appeared certain that Vice-President Curtis would be the candidate of his party again, in spite of an opposition movement stimulated by the Gann arch-foe, Alice Roosevelt Longworth.

Mrs. Gann had pricked the bubble of that movement and seen it collapse at her capable feet. That meant success for the belligerent Kansas housewife, success in spite of the wittiest tongue in Washington.

Akron Back Home After Pacific Trip

Lakehurst, N. J., June 16 (AP)—The navy dirigible Akron is back at its base after its journey to the Pacific fleet maneuvers. The giant ship arrived last night.

DO you inhale? 7 out of 10 smokers know they inhale. The other 3 inhale without realizing it. Every smoker inhales—for every smoker breathes in some part of the smoke he or she draws out of a cigarette.

Do you inhale? Of course you do! Lucky Strike has dared to raise this vital question . . . because certain impurities concealed in even the finest, mildest tobacco leaves are removed by Luckies' famous purifying process. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!

Do you inhale? More than 20,000 physicians, after Luckies had been furnished them for tests, basing their opinions on their smoking experience, stated that Luckies are less irritating to the throat than other cigarettes.

DOCTOR, 67, TO WED WIDOW, 66

A lavender and old rose romance was revealed today when Dr. Frank A. Higgins, 67, living at the Brae Burn Country Club, West Newton, filed intentions to marry Mrs. Phoebe H. Kennedy, 66, of 137 Clinton st., Brookline.

The marriage intentions were filed in Newton City Hall, and the prospective bridegroom secured a waiver of the five day law. Then he checked out of the Brae Burn Country Club, where he has lived six years, and left for Brookline.

Mrs. Kennedy is the widow of Frederick J. Kennedy, head of the Kennedy chain of clothing stores, who died in March of 1931 leaving an estate valued at $7,000,000.

Book Ordered Here 298 Years Ago Is Delivered Today

Back in the musty records of Massachusetts Bay Colony—298 years ago—there's an order for a grammar for early delivery.

It was delivered today.

At any rate, the L'Academie Francaise in France kept within the 300-year mark in making delivery.

The book arrived at a downtown bookshop after nearly three years of editing, proof-reading and deliberation by its sponsors.

A rhetoric and treatise on poetry are still on order. They may be delivered soon—in 300 years or so.

Banker Defends $1000 Deal But Widow Asks $113,000

John R. Hooper, ex-president of the New England Trust Co., was a witness for the respondents today in the Farquhar estate case, it is being heard by Judge Pratt in Suffolk Probate Court.

The palintiff is Mrs. Jennie H. Farquhar, the aged widow of the late James F. Farquhar, part owner of R. & J. Farquhar Co.

She seeks to have the court set aside a decree by the same court in 1922, which authorized the New England Trust to sell 1000 shares of the stock of the Farquhar company for $1000.

WIDOW ASKS $113,000.

The widow charges the court was deceived, and she wants the 1000 shares back, or in their place $113,000 cash.

Among the respondents are Roger Pierce, Milton; Orrin C. Hart, Wellesley; C. Philip Johnson, Walpole; Frank Palfrey of Malden; Henry F. Grew, Ora H. Ellis and Sewell E. Swallow of Boston; Arthur P. Thomas of Reading and Alexander P. Dewar, George Cruickshank and Victor E. Nelson.

The last three bought the stock for $1000. They were working for the Farquhars at the time.

SAW NO DISHONESTY

Hooper denied there was anything irregular in the sale. He said his sole purpose was to find a purchaser, the company being headed for the rocks. He declared his bank got no secret commission, and he doubted if there had been fraud.

He specifically denied seeing evidence that Dewar, Cruickshank and Nelson were anything but honest and aboveboard.

Other witnesses during the day were Roger Pierce, of Milton, president of the New England Trust Co. since 1927; Henry J. Jenner of Wollaston, a bookkeeper, and F. M. Stackpole, attorney for the Merchants Trust Co. in 1922. That trust company arranged the disputed sale.

Judge Sets Aside Divorce Decree

Swift and Lee Abbott, representing Mrs. Morse, told the court they had not been notified concerning the hearing called Tuesday. The case will come up in September.

G. O. P. BACKS HOOVER ON DRY STRADDLE

America, "with faith in humanity and with idealism in our souls," might carry on the heritage of the ages.

Then followed a roll call of the states for the official announcement of the new members of the Republican national committee.

HOOVER DEMONSTRATION

Snell cut a corner by not ordering the call of the roll for nominations for President. He merely announced the time for receiving nominations had arrived and recognized Joseph L. Scott of Los Angeles, picked weeks ago to make the nominating speech for President Hoover.

The convention gave Scott a hand as he appeared at the edge of the platform and he was applauded time after time as he proceeded, but the really big demonstration was reserved for the end of the speech.

When quiet was restored Dr. France of Maryland was put in nomination by L. E. Sandblast of Portland, Ore., a state in which France won the primary election.

MRS. HERT FOR HOOVER

Mrs. Alvin T. Hert of Louisville, Ky., then was recognized to second the nomination of Hoover. She declared she spoke "in the name of the women of America, that mighty host that without regard to party overwhelmingly supported him four years ago, and who with increased loyalty support him today."

Gov. Wilber M. Brucker of Michigan, a veteran of the Rainbow Division, in another seconding speech, said that if the President were not a willing candidate, the Republicans would draft him.

A woman member of Congress, Ruth Pratt of New York, told the convention the party had builded better than it knew when it named Hoover four years ago.

Then Judge Frank R. Bentley of Madison, Wis., added his second, recounting that in many past conventions the "conservative" wing of the party in his State had been kept out of national conventions and was proud now to be for once in the majority on the State delegation.

"This is a great day," hea aid, "for the Republicans of Wisconsin."

Next in order was the nomination for vice-president. Though Curtis was assured of victory, according to administration forces, opposition developed in several quarters.

George F. Booth, chairman of the Massachusetts delegation, had officially announced former Gov. Alvan T. Fuller would be placed in nomination by former Cong. George R. Stobbs.

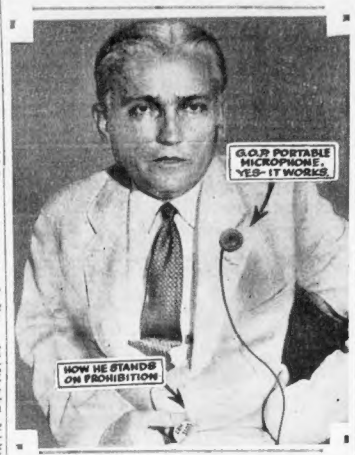
Scars of the all night battle over the prohibition plank in the platform were apparent in the attitude of many delegates today. Repealists had mustered a strength that astounded the stand patters and straddlers. The vote was 472 in favor and 681 against repeal.



What about that slight to Senator Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut? That's the question "wets" are asking in Chicago. It is reported that because Bingham sought a repeal plank he was denied position on resolution sub-committee. Here we have the senator with new miniature portable microphone—the latest in radio patents. Also note that "VOTE WET" button held in his right hand.

N. E. for Repeal by 57 to 36

Chicago, Ill., June 16—The vote of the New England delegations for and against the prohibition repeal plank of Senator Bingham was as follows:

Connecticut, 19 yes.
Massachusetts, 16 yes, 17 no.
New Hampshire, 11 no.
Rhode Island, 8 yes.
Vermont, 9 yes.
Maine, 5 yes, 8 no.

New England thus cast 57 votes for repeal to 38 votes for the Hoover plank.

Disgruntled delegates were saying today:

"Well, the Democrats will now have to adopt a straight-out repeal plank, and then we will see how wet this country is."

BINGHAM LEADS FIGHT

It was Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut who proposed the repealer, and raised his tall, white-thatched form on the platform twice, to open and close the debate.

In his opening the challenged the administration leaders to explain what the prohibition plank meant.

"All we ask is a chance to vote on something that means something," thundered the Connecticut senator. "We want to come clean on prohibition. The plank which the majority of the resolutions committee presents you is meaningless. They propose something that nobody can understand."

The platform committee's reference to the need of "preserving the gains" that have been made under prohibition came in for scathing treatment at Bingham's hands.

"Gains," he queried sarcastically. "Yes, there have been gains. Gains in the number of children arrested for intoxication. There have been gains in the arrests of citizens who will not obey this law. Do you want to preserve those gains?

"We adopted the Eighteenth Amendment 'to win the war'; let us repeal it to win the depression."

"SLAVERY" SAYS BUTLER

Bingham was ably seconded by the veteran repeal advocate, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University.

"The distinguished chairman of the resolutions committee," Butler said ironically, "thinks this is a question of liquor. It isn't—it is a question of good government."

"What the word slavery was 75 years ago, the word prohibition is today. Let's have some party honesty about this issue. Let's have some courage instead of cowardice. Let's not play hide and seek with the Constitution of the United States."

The chairman to whom Butler referred is James R. Garfield of Ohio, son of President Garfield. He had labored to defend the plank drafted after long days and nights of conference and much telephoning to the White House.

"LITTLE RHODY" SPEAKS

Mills was followed by Ambrose Kennedy of Rhode Island, who informed the convention that while "Little Rhody" was the smallest state physically in the Union it is "the most potent" against prohibition.

Kennedy said he had listened attentively to Mills and that he still wished that some one would tell him exactly what the majority's prohibition plank meant.

As for the Eighteenth Amendment, Kennedy said, "public opinion has already nullified it."

Walter E. Fenton of Vermont followed Kennedy, speaking for the minority report, and then came James Francis Burke of Pennsylvania for the majority. Burke, as general counsel for the national committee, pleaded for harmony.

Bingham's Repeal Plank

Chicago, June 16—Anti-prohibition delegates at the Republican national convention who rejected the submission plank reported by the resolutions committee, were united behind a plank drawn by Senator Bingham of Connecticut, leader of the repeal group. His proposal follows:

We recommend that the Congress of the United States immediately propose "a amendment to the Federal Constitution repealing the Eighteenth Amendment thereto; to be submitted to conventions of the people of the several states called for that sole purpose in accordance with the provisions of Article 5 of the Constitution of the United States.

Should the Eighteenth Amendment be repealed, we pledge our best efforts toward enactment of such measures in the several states as will actually promote temperance, effectually abolish the saloon, whether open or concealed, and bring the liquor traffic itself under complete public supervision and control with revenues properly drawn from legalized sources for the relief of burdened taxpayers.

"Let us bury our differences," he said.

Oscar F. Nelson, Illinois labor leader, told them that organized labor is solidly against the Eighteenth Amendment; J. A. Nelson of Iowa received a lot of "boos" by asserting that the Iowa farmers are still bone dry; ex-Governor Fred Green of Michigan, supported the Butler-Bingham proposal, and James H. Duff of Pennsylvania did likewise.

Then came the windup by John L. McNab of San Francisco in favor of the "straddling plank" and only delegate in all the debate to inject the name of President Hoover.

"Four years ago in Kansas City," he said, "I had the honor of nominating Herbert Hoover for the presidency.

"Now, I want to know if you want to support the President of the United States or split the Republican party on this issue."

Ex-Sen. France Put in Nomination

Chicago, June 15 (AP)—The vigorous but futile effort which Joseph I. France has made for the Republican presidential nomination today reached the convention floor with its nomination by L. B. Sandblast of Portland, Ore.

France, former Senator from Maryland, claims approximately 221 votes because of balloting for him in preference primaries but indications were he would get few—if any—once the voting began.

Sandblast, from a state where France won the Republican preference primary, said he had been attracted to France by his clear enunciation of vital principles and then read appeals made by France for a return to the spirit of the Constitution.

SHAKEDOWN RACKET TERROR TO RICH WRONGDOERS

By A STAFF REPORTER

(Copyright, 1932, by Boston Evening American)

The "shakedown" racket, or extortion, as it is called on the statute books, is still being worked on a large scale in this vicinity, notwithstanding the astounding disclosures of a few years ago, which put this racket in the spotlight.

Taking advantage of the foibles and mistakes of persons of wealth and prominence is a source of large returns to several mobs, some of which are local groups.

Out-of-town gangs have prospective victims called to their attention—"fingered" to them—just as other racketeers do, in accordance with the almost universal practice in organized crime.

One Boston youth of the playboy type was so often "taken" that his family adopted the policy of paying a mob leader a stipulated amount each month to protect him from the shakedown men.

The prominent unnamed Bostonian, who had figured in the life of Starr Faithfull, received an indirect approach from blackmailers only a brief time before her death. And her murder or suicide, whichever it was, is believed to have resulted from this attempt to trade on her unfortunate past.

Extortion of $110,000 Prevented by Police

Nowadays, however, there is none of the reckless talking and ostentatious spending which had much to do with bringing about the exposures that shook Boston and damaged many reputations.

A short time ago an executive of a large Boston corporation sat down with a trio of shakedown mobsters and was about to hand over $110,000 when a group of Boston police inspectors stepped into the picture.

The police made their appearance two minutes [illegible] to catch the crooks in the overt act of receiving the money, but the three men were arrested for their attempt to extort.

When the case came up in court, however, the victim would not appear as a witness, the mob having scared him off by further tightening of the screws with which they had already exerted pressure on him.

Confiding in Pal Was Gangster's Error

As his testimony was vital to the police case, the three defendants had to be turned loose.

This mob came to Boston from New York on information supplied by a local "finger," who is said to have tipped them off to several other paying victims in the past few years.

This local contact couldn't keep his tongue from wagging to a pal about this prospective [illegible] which meant an $11,000 cut for him. A police [illegible] the man on [illegible] enough to give him a clue as to what was about to take place.

Three inspectors were assigned from headquarters to tail the local mobster and the New York crowd with which he was seen contacting.

The arrests came about as I have related, but the members of the gang were as [illegible] and refused even to admit they knew each other. They would make no statements [illegible] to the [illegible] questioning at headquarters.

Victim Threatened With Expose by Gangsters

While they were still being held incommunicado two attorneys with a lucrative practice in this line of work appeared, evidently [illegible] by the local contact man [illegible]

[illegible] the mob had communicated with the victim and [illegible] him that he was liable to arrest himself [illegible] as he had made arrangements with them to keep quiet about the mishandling of certain property. Knowledge of this offense was the whole basis for their shakedown plot.

Extortion, as everyone is aware, is nothing new in crime. It is as old as civilization and depends on the crooks having knowledge of wrongdoing on the part of their victim. On this information they trade and profit, threatening him with exposure unless he comes across.

When a public official connected with the administration of justice has a part in the racket it is particularly odorous. The victim knows then that it is a clear-cut case of paying or going to prison. The official is betraying his public trust in an especially flagrant manner. The public is familiar enough with the cases of this sort which have come to light.

Authors of Defamatory Letters Often Insane

Like most other rackets, the shakedown game is all too successful—just one of the many blots which the mob system has put on this country.

There seems to be a general supposition that the sending of defamatory letters to prominent persons, their friends and relatives, constitutes the same kind of racket.

This error would not occur if it were possible to acquaint the public with the contents of the messages, which show at first glance that the attacks are being made by persons either temporarily or permanently unbalanced.

The same goes for most of those letters threatening harm and demanding large sums of money which have been received by prominent individuals like Mrs. Maynard Coleman Ladd, Mrs. Malcolm E. Greenough and Constance Morrow, sister of Anne Lindbergh.

Letters Traced to World War Hero

These letters, in the opinion of the keenest expert in this line in Boston and another in New York, were written by a man who was cited during the World War by all the Allies for his work on code messages.

This man was arrested for questioning in connection with the investigation of the letters sent to Miss Morrow, then a student at Milton Academy, who was asked to pay $50,000 on pain of kidnaping and death. Through the blundering tactics of a high police official he was given a chance to get control of himself and talked his way out of custody.

Intensive work for several days and nights at a stretch with buckets of steaming black coffee to key his mental faculties to an abnormal pitch in order that he might decipher enemy code messages was his role during the war.

The result was a nervous breakdown and the aftermath is periods of over-tense mentality when he puts his hand to this form of wrong doing, according to the experts.

Handwriting Copied From Peculiar Script

He does not use his own handwriting but generally follows a peculiar style of script, usually writing very small but making each letter of the alphabet exactly the same every time he uses it. He evidently copies from some standard which has come into his possession or which he devised.

The text of letters sent to Mrs. Greenough, society matron and wife of a former Harvard football captain, was similar to that used by a Sicilian blackhand society in Chicago and Detroit some years ago.

There was nothing in these letters to give the slightest clue to the identity of the sender. In the Morrow case, however, comparisons were made with letters found in a place to which the former government employe is alleged to have had access.

Letters written more recently to a Boston clubman are laid by police to a man said to be suffering from an incurable malady, affecting his mentality.

Victims Framed by Small Time Mobs

A petty form of blackmail in which the victim is "framed," being accused of an offense by fake policemen and made to hand over $200 to $500 to buy himself off, is worked constantly by small mobs operating in the vicinity of railroad stations and occasionally on the Common.

Reverting to high class [illegible] a profitable racket here as in other large cities is the certified check swindle, based on the idea that "anybody will take a certified check."

A Boston garage owner who also owned considerable other property and had a sizeable bank account was taken for $22,500 by a mob out of Chicago with a Seattle connection.

The local man was trying to sell the garage and was approached by a member of the mob who gave every evidence of having plenty of money. The latter agreed to buy the place at the top price asked and said he would wire to his wife in Seattle for $[illegible] with which to bind the deal.

"I am stopping at the —— Hotel," he said, "but am going to move to a more classy place. In the meantime, do you mind if I have my mail come to your address?"

Check for $25,000 Mailed From Seattle

The garage owner agreed to that and a few days later a letter with a Seattle postmark arrived. The mobster waited a couple of days longer to whet the appetite of the garage man.

When he opened the letter he took from it a check, not for $2,500 but for $25,000. He let the garage man see this and the letter accompanying it, in which he was informed that the trustees of his father's estate were pleased with his investment.

"Look at this," he said to the Boston man. "I told her $2500 and she sends $25,000. That's a woman for you. I'll have to bank this unless you want to put it in your account."

Delay in Revealing Check as Fake

As it was a certified check to all appearances the garage man gladly took it and gave his personal check for the difference, $22,500, keeping $2500 to bind the bargain for the sale of the place.

"Now," said the mob man, "it will be about ten days before I receive the necessary papers from the trustees of the estate, authorizing me to make the purchase. I'll be back then with the remainder."

He went to a Boston bank where he had previously opened an account by depositing $1000 and there deposited the garage man's check, receiving credit on his account for $22,500. He then waited two days—not time enough for the fake certified check to be dishonored in Seattle—and went to the bank and drew out all except $300, leaving that much to allay suspicion.

A few days later the garage man was informed that the certified check which he had deposited in his own bank was worthless. It was later discovered that the same mob worked simultaneously in the other [illegible] up a like amount in Seattle.

By THE MASKED REPORTER
(Copyright, 1932, for the Boston Evening American.)

The weather was beginning to steam up, and I decided to drop in on Dan, the philosopher, after more than a week of wandering.

Imagine my surprise when I labored up the rickety stairs to find the barred doors were gone, vanished. I might have been entering a legitimate place of business and I feared that I was. But my eyes set me right.

On entering there was Dan behind the [illegible] [illegible] who shined up to [illegible] concert pitch a most complacent smile on his face and looking like the cat that ate the canary.

Masked Reporter

"Where've you been all my life?" he greeted me jovially. A [illegible] stirred by the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] ed.

"Well, it is a long time, Dan, since we said 'Top o' the morning, to each other.'"

SIX "SPEAKS" CLOSED

"True it is, my boy," returned Dan, the Philosopher. "Hold on to the bar for a minute, lad, and I'll fix you one that will straighten you out. That is, it will straighten you out one way or another and I'll have one with you.

"Not that I need it, but just to the continued success of John, the with the aid of a hard-hearted orator's policy."

With his usual deftness when would have brought a flush of [illegible] to the cheeks of old [illegible] the Winter [illegible] Tavern of [illegible] memory he did his stuff.

"Daniel," says I, "what's happened on the rum Rialto in the last 10 days? Why the open faced operations?" I expound.

"You mean since the day the booths agreed to close up?"

"Yes," says I.

"Well, my lad," says Dan, "many things have happened, but the most important of all is this! Six barricaded 'speaks' have left our midst.

"Dan and his dear woman have made $870 in real shekels since the day John, the orator, and Steve, the diplomat, came into our lives. All those so-called bootleggers answered their master's voice with the exception of Mickey (not Arnold) and good old Marty. Marty did close but he couldn't help it."

How come, Dan?"

"Oh, John the Orator went over to the fighting fool, Jerry of Lagrange st. and borrowed a very much used warrant, and with the aid of a hard-hearted landlord they journeyed down Stuart st. and grabbed a load of wood."

"I don't understand about the much used warrant," I ventured.

"I'll tell you," says Dan. "Jerry honestly believes in prohibition, and he keeps going to court getting warrants for speaks. Some people say as fast as Jerry gets the warrant a bird flies to the Heart of Theaterland and sings in the ears of certain speakeasy operators.

"So John the Orator knows where to find a badly-used warrant any time. That's what I mean."

"How come you get away, Dan?" I asked.

HOW HE WORKS IT

"Oh, I have my secretary of state, and now Maggie and me every night spend our time gazing at pictures of Franklin, Hamilton, Jefferson, Lincoln, and a lot of other fathers of the country on small, green pieces of paper. Sometimes I get rid of some of these pictures, but not to policemen, my lad.

"No more, I'm thankful to be rid of the days when we had to give up 75 per cent of the joint to chevrons. Now my lad, things aren't so bad, and if you want to know, for more than a fortnight I've offered my prayers, one each for John the Orator, Steve the Diplomat, Little Leo and Corporal Bernie. May they have many more bright ideas."

With that he shook up another sour and between gulps I asked, "What else is new, Daniel?"

"Well, there's rumblin' of a few transfers. The drug store is open, the cafe is doing well, the two hotels will pay the mortgages, and it looks like boom times in the Heart of Theaterland. Several cigar front establishments without barred doors have taken on a rent problem and the secret service squad that was in our midst 10 days, has gone back to the woods to hibernate.

"What's more, there's a real undercover squad at work, without police badges, but listen—take a load of the sun. Here's a few honest dollars. So long."

Three cash customers had entered.

SWEDISH PRINCE IN BETROTHAL

Coburg, Germany, June 16 (AP) —Prince Gustaf Adolf, eldest son of the Crown Prince of Sweden, placed a plain gold ring on the hand of Princess Sybille of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha today and the two were betrothed.

The simple ceremony took place in an old world atmosphere in the Callenburg palace with the former King Ferdinand of Bulgaria, assessor of the House of Coburg, presiding. The father and mother of the princess were present.

There was a luncheon at the end of which the guests drank the health of the prince.

Guilfoyle Loses in His Plea for Death on the Gallows

Hartford, Conn., June 16 (AP).—Dr. Harold N. Guilfoyle was told today that the Superior Court was powerless to grant his request that he be hanged for a slaying for which he is serving a life sentence.

The Hartford man based his plea for death on the contention that the court erred in convicting him of second degree murder when the indictment charged him with first degree murder. He is accused of slaying Mrs. Claire Kavanaugh Gazlet in 1928.

"Of course, I can't order you hanged, even if I should want to, but you have no desire to be [redacted] No more than I do."

"But I do," Guilfoyle insisted. "A death sentence is preferable to a life sentence. I am friendless and penniless, and I can't get my case heard further."

AUBURN

15% LESS than the LOWEST priced car

PER POUND

Weight DOES mean safety, stamina, durability and COMFORT. Weight does NOT mean extravagance to operate. A car of correct weight can operate as economically as one that is built too light and flimsy. (Auburn has official test records for over 20 miles per gallon for Auburn Straight Eights. Thousands of Auburn owners all over the country are averaging 15 to 16 miles per gallon in their everyday driving.) Weight means strength, and ability to stand up and endure, thus prolonging the life and service of the car and protecting your investment. THE HIGHEST PRICED CARS ARE ALWAYS THE HEAVIEST—think that over when comparing Auburn's new slashed prices. Maybe you'll hear critics of Auburn's new merchandising program. We have. Some say: "it can't be done"—"it is a clean up sale"—"the cars are old models"—etc. NONE OF THESE ARE TRUE. Auburn has again dared to be different; dared to offer a sufficient inducement to cause people to buy; dared to slash prices in order to give thousands jobs. Too good to be true? Thousands already KNOW IT IS TRUE. Auburn factories are rapidly approaching full capacity to meet the demand. The shrewd American public recognizes Auburn's values. Sales are 1500 more cars for the first 5 days of this program in June than for the entire 31 days of May. Come and see for yourself. EVERY car is brand NEW. We repeat—this is not a "sale" of obsolete merchandise, but Auburn's new basis for doing business in order to give men jobs and give YOU BARGAINS.

U. S. Dry Raiders Dig in Quest of 'Pillbox's' Secret

THIS IS LIFE

RADIO CITY MIGHT TELL IN SCULPTURE HOOVER'S GIFT OF AIR LINES

—By ROBERT E. ROGERS—

THE WITS OF AMERICA, I imagine, will be quick to take up the challenge to their critical faculties in the latest bit of publicity given out by the Rockefeller Center, Inc., the power behind the mammoth Radio Corporation of America group of buildings which is now in process of covering an entire block off Fifth ave., near St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York city. This is the project, as the wits have already noticed, which foreshadowed Mr. Rockefeller junior's famous utterance by displacing dozens and dozens of speakeasies when the foundation work began.

PROF. ROGERS

It is said that the Rockefeller interests are really peeved at the storm of criticism their plans have already roused in the New York magazine press. There is to be, as you know, a massive group of buildings, covering almost an entire block. There will be office buildings, a great sound picture auditorium with Roxy in charge, an opera house to take the place of the Metropolitan, a little theater perhaps, television studios as well as broadcasting factories. In short, it is to be the great popular entertainment center of the new world. And the announced plans have left some of the most sincere and intelligent publicists of New York very low in their minds.

Area Already Badly Congested

Why, they wail, should the already monstrously congested center of Manhattan be augmented with a new and unnecessary piece of congestion? If there is any art or industry which is completely independent of space limits it is radio and television. Why, then, pile more great masses of building material in the midst of a city already badly overbuilt, already full of empty and unrentable structures that serve only to cater to the vanity of their owners?

But in spite of protests the Rockefeller Center management has gone steadily ahead and now has announced the nature of the decorations to be viewed above the main entrance of the 70-story office building, overlooking the central forum or sunken plaza and the promenade connecting the forum with Fifth ave.

The title of the sculptural work will be "Wisdom—a Voice From the Clouds." A central figure representing Wisdom will be flanked by two figures representing Light and Sound. The publicity says:

"A physical background for the sculptural conception of Light may be found in sunlight, artificial illumination, motion pictures, television and other marvels of man or nature. Figuratively, however, Light is to be considered as suggesting the broader education and the better understanding by mankind of the present state of human progress."

Or in Goethe's dying words, "More light!"

"The physical background for the sculptural conception of Sound may be found in the radio and the telephone. Mental and spiritual connotations are found, however, in the enlargement of man's frontiers of information by the perfection of media for transforming the oral word."

Eliot's Famous Words of Wisdom

And very pretty it ought to be, too! One hopes that they will not turn out to be quite so thin and artificial and academic as Puvis de Chavannes' famous struggles with scientific concepts above the staircase of our own Boston Public Library. Good News and Bad News, for instance, suspended in space above a line of telegraph wires as if bouncing on a national spring bed. Or the atmosphere of a cooking-school demonstration in the panel "Chemistry."

Always there yawns the gap between the Ideal and the Actual. There be scoffers who have looked at C. W. Eliot's inscription above one of the Harvard gates, "Enter, to Grow in Wisdom" and have been openly skeptical. But probably they were from Yale—or Dartmouth.

And there be people who have read the same Eliot's magnificent inscription about the U. S. postal service, as revised by Woodrow Wilson, and have shared the same dubiety. "Neither snow nor hail nor night shall stay these messengers from the completion of their appointed rounds." I've botched it from memory, but that's the idea.

I never think of it without remembering the time I turned in a special delivery letter at the central postoffice in Cambridge at 9 a. m. on Saturday and found it was delivered at 9 a. m. on Monday.

This being true, I am afraid that the Rockefeller sculptures will be viewed with some malice and sense of injury by all of us who believe that both the motion pictures and the radio could be doing their jobs a lot better, and not a lot less commercially, than they are doing them at present.

Might Tell What Hoover Did

Far more appropriate, many think, for the decorations of Radio City would be a reproduction of that magnificent double-page cartoon that the New Yorker published some time last year. It was called "The Angelus." There was Millet's flat plain, this time covered with kneeling figures. In the distance the clock tower marked the mystical hour of 7 o'clock. And above the prostrate multitudes floated two robed and ecstatic figures, dark and Afroamerican, presumably remarking to each other "sho, sho!" and "I'se regusted" and, mayhap, "Check and double check."

The Rockefeller Center people can idealize until they are black in the face, but the fact remains that that cartoon represents what most of the American people and all of the advertising interests find significant in the radio. There could be side-panels, of course: scenes from "Once in a Lifetime" to represent the higher aspects of the moving pictures; portraits in low relief of Messrs. Vallee, Wons, Crosby, Winchell and Sobol, the latter emitting from their lips balloons inscribed "O. K. Los Angeles!"

And underneath it, carved deeply, that historic utterance of the Commission which, a couple of years ago, investigated the possibilities of putting education on the air: "It is our opinion that educational programs can be put upon the air only by raising a subsidy of $10,000,000 to pay the commercial radio stations for the use of their time and air channels."

That is the music of it, if not the exact words! Their time and their air channels, indeed! The time and the air channels that Mr. Secretary of Commerce Hoover gave to the commercial interests for their enrichment through advertising!

I certainly think that those words ought to be inscribed somewhere on Radio City, together with all the other lovely words about Light and Wisdom, broader education and better understanding. But they won't be!

SUSPECTS ARE NOT POSITIVELY IDENTIFIED

Woman Caught in Wilmington Camp Raid Is Given Severe Grilling by the Police

Twenty holdup witnesses "looked over" three pals of "Bad Willie" Gray in a police lineup today while the imprisoned Gray's "girl friend" was under a separate grilling by police.

Little success was reported by the witnesses, including clerks and customers of the Allston branch of the National Shawmut Bank, the Codman sq. branch of the Dorchester Savings Bank and Brigham's ice cream parlor in Brookline.

John Carroll, alias Curran, 30, of Houghs Neck, "looked like the man" to several and Herbert Mee, 22, of Mapleton st., Brighton, merely resembled a holdup man who victimized others.

They were arrested in a Wilmington camp yesterday with Mrs. Jessie Rose Ritchie, 38, alleged sweetheart of Gray.

John F. Marley, captured Monday at Northampton st. and Shawmut ave., South End, was not picked by any.

LETTER GIVES CLUE.

Mrs. Ritchie, during the lineup of the men was closeted with Deputy Supt. McDevitt for a rigid questioning.

Nine of today's witnesses were from the Allston bank. Six were from the Dorchester savings bank and five were witnesses to other holdups.

An "anonymous" letter, naming one of those arrested as an accomplice in the Brighton bank holdup on May 23, led police on the Wilmington raid yesterday.

In Mee's cottage they found him with Mrs. Ritchie and Miss Frances Peterson of Cambridge, both the women dressed in lounging pajamas. In the second cottage they found Carrol and Miss Ethel Smith of Cambridge. The Cambridge girls were released and the other three were brought to Boston.

FAIL TO IDENTIFY THEM

Today's witnesses included Miss Helen Bishop, clerk in the Dorchester Savings Bank, Andrew C. Bain, assistant manager; Arthur [illegible] and [illegible] A. Bartholemew, tellers of the Allston Bank, and Mr. [illegible] F. [illegible] of Weston, a customer.

George M. McLaughlin of Allston said Carroll looked like one of the men who fled the Brookline ice cream parlor. Miss Bishop said Carroll resembled one of five who held up the Dorchester Bank March 28.

Bartholomew, whose life was saved by bullet-proof glass in the Allston Bank, said Carroll resembled one of four who were [illegible] May 23.

After the questioning Carroll and Mee were arrested on [illegible] warrants at Brighton station charged with assault with intent to kill Bartholomew. Marley was held at headquarters for further questioning.

STONE LAID FOR STATE BUILDING

Members of the Department of Public Works and of state bureaus gathered today to witness the laying of the cornerstone of the new $1,600,000 public works building under construction in Nashua st. near the North Station.

Frank E. Lyman, commissioner of public works, performed the honors with the assistance of Edward T. P. Graham, the architect. Short addresses were made by DeWitt C. DeWolf, secretary to the governor, and by Heman A. MacDonald, assistant commissioner.

The building, which is expected to be ready for occupancy Dec. 1, will house all branches of the Public Works Department and the Registry of Motors.

CLAM BOOTLEGS FINED IN QUINCY

The embattled clam-diggers of Houghs Neck held another conference with Mayor McGrath of Quincy today without advancing their cause. They seek to have a new clam-digging area opened, saving the old one is dug out. In the absence of the state fish and game commissioner and others, McGrath refused to commit himself. The clam diggers deny the areas they want [illegible] are polluted.

Two young Houghs Neck men were arraigned as clam bootleggers before Judge Avery in Quincy today and pleaded guilty.

Robert W. Finch, Rogers st., and Woodward Benn, Babcock st., were fined $[illegible] each and given time to make payment.

BIG FIRMS IN JURY PROBE

The widening ripple of investigation which followed the plunge of the Suffolk grand jury into the affairs of the closed Industrial Bank & Trust Co. today washed against the foundations of several Massachusetts corporations.

Attested copies of the incorporation papers of several companies were procured at the State House by Inspectors Conroy and Concannon, attached to the district attorney's office.

JOB OFFERED BY WIFE SO MAN CAN PAY HER

It happened in Salem court today.

A wife offered her estranged husband a job so he could pay her $12 a week alimony.

Mrs. Suzzanne Howe of Swampscott, brought from France by Percy Howe as his war bride, created a furore in the court with the offer and with her ready answers to questions in cross-examination.

Last October she was granted custody of three children, one of whom, Robert, 14, afterwards refused to live with his mother and went to his father.

"You once earned $8 a day?" Mrs. Howe was asked after she told of selling hosiery for a living.

"Yes, but my husband once washed the floor for me. That was a long time ago," was the answer.

"Your husband has testified that he makes only $4 a week at the General Electric plant. Have you any suggestions as to how he could make more money?" the court inquired of the wife.

"Yes, he could sell ladies' hosiery for the company that employs me," was the ready response. "He brought me here from France and we had children; some one has to pay."

The court said he could not order the suggestion carried out, but said Howe would be put on his honor for a month to find a way to pay.

Husband and wife were in conference after the court tilt but declined to air their plans.

LEGION WOMEN OPEN MEETING

With more than 700 delegates in attendance the three-day convention of the Massachusetts department of the American Legion auxiliary opened at the New Ocean House, Swampscott, today. Mrs. Emma F. Lovejoy of Melrose is presiding while Mrs. Louise W. Williams of New York, the national president, will be the speaker.

Meeting little opposition for the presidency, Miss Gertrude McLaughlin of Westmoreland st. Dorchester, is virtually assured of the position. She has been vice president for two years besides being head of the Orient Heights Auxiliary and the Suffolk County Council.

Tonight the annual banquet will be held. Guests include Comdr. Stephen Garrity, Adjt. Harold P. Redden and Department Chaplain Robert J. White of the Massachusetts Department of the Legion, and Richard F. Paul, national vice-commander.

PISTOL PERMIT PROBE OPENED IN CAMBRIDGE

Russell Orders Action After a Harvard Student Kills Self in Worry Over Tests

An investigation ordered by Mayor Russell of Cambridge today revealed that George Amory Maddox, Jr., 20, Harvard senior who committed suicide in a dormitory, gave a false age when applying for a gun permit.

The youth, who shot himself through the head, gave his age as 22 in applying June 13 for permission to have a target pistol.

WORRIED OVER EXAMS

Said to have been a victim of worry over final examinations, the body of Maddox, a bullet hole in the head, was found in a chair in his room in Leverett House yesterday.

As a result of the suicide, Mayor Russell instructed Chief of Police McBride to submit to him a list and description of all persons having permits, stressing the ages of any students.

He said he would investigate to determine if anyone has a permit who has no legal right to carry firearms.

Chief McBride reported that Maddox, in his application, gave the date of his birth as April 7, 1910, but failed to state his birthplace.

He was recommended for the purchase of a weapon, police said, by Allan Evans, senior tutor at Leverett House. In a note signed by Evans it was stated:

"Maddox is a member of Leverett House and is to the best of my knowledge a trustworthy person to whom a target pistol may safely be sold."

PERMIT HELD UP

Police records revealed Maddox was unable to obtain a permit June 13, the day he sought it, because of the lack of a photograph. He had furnished two, but regulations require three. He told police he wanted to get a gun that day as there was a sale in Boston.

The problem was solved when the student made a deposit on the weapon, police said, and purchased it the next day.

The youth's father, George Amory Maddox, Sr., arrived at Cambridge today and arranged for the shipment of the body to Washington, his home.

University officials said the question of permitting students to have firearms in their rooms was up to individual house masters.

Sleuth in Butter and Egg Role Fails to Snare 2 Bellboys

Bernard "Barney" Carney, police liquor sleuth of many disguises, has essayed a new role as "The Big Butter and Egg Man," it developed in municipal court today.

Carney, who at various times has employed Mrs. Carney to obtain liquor sales, was complainant against two bellboys of the Metropolitan Hotel.

He said he paid $2 a pint for liquor, 25 cents for ginger ale but failed to mention whether he proffered a tip.

But it took Atty. Herbert F. Callahan, counsel for Stanley Sabin and Frank Peters, the bellboys, to bring out the "butter and egg man" role.

"Didn't you talk to Sabin about women, besides liquor?" queried Callahan.

"What's that?" broke in Judge Murray. "Did you ask the bellboy to get a woman?"

"Yes," replied Carney. The questioning ceased there.

Carney said he bought the liquor from Sabin on May 19 and from Peters the next day. He admitted he failed to identify the two bellboys until after a ten-minute conference with Police Capt. Jeremiah Gallivan.

"Didn't Capt. Gallivan accuse you of double-crossing him during that conference?" challenged Callahan. Carney denied the accusation.

Capt. Gallivan said Carney failed of immediate identification of Sabin and Peters.

"No jury would ever convict on this evidence. Not guilty," said Judge Murray.

"I can't go through another day . . . oh, what is the matter? What shall I do"? Did you ever feel this way yourself?

Nearly Nervous Prostration

DO you know her . . . this poor woman who wakes up as tired as she went to bed?

Her head is still aching . . . her nerves are ragged . . . she's on the verge of tears as she faces another day of work.

"I can't go through it again . . . I can't. Oh, what is the matter? What shall I do?" she cries.

How many young women are fast approaching a nervous breakdown because they let suffering due to female weakness rob them of their strength and health.

In offices or in their homes, they drive themselves, working "on their nerve." Hoping against hope that tomorrow they will feel better . . . but instead they become more and more prostrated.

It is a double tragedy because it is so unnecessary.

Nature did not mean women to suffer so cruelly. If they would only try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound! It has befriended women against their "peculiar" troubles for over 50 years.

It brings soothing, comforting relief . . . gently corrects through its strengthening tonic action the cause of the headaches and backaches that wear you out. Drives away the awful lassitude that kills ambition and makes life a burden.

This simple, safe remedy has justly earned its place in the Family Medicine Cabinet.

Won't you listen to the testimony of thousands of women who use it?

ARTFUL AND CLEVER THE WAY OF THE VAMP, SAYS MISS FAIRFAX

She Studies the Wives of Her Victims and Improves on Their Attractions

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THERE REALLY isn't any witchcraft or black magic in the way that vamps walk off with other women's husbands and—sass!—their pay envelopes as well.

Have you ever happened to overhear the talk at the next table in a restaurant, or listen to the gentle prattling of the couple next you in a theater? Perhaps you may be acquainted with the wife of the bald-headed gentleman who leads in the lovely vamp. A elderly feeling for the vamping, neglected wife at home makes you take stock of the vamp, with a coldly appraising eye and ear.

TOO BUSY WITH CLUB

Yes, you've got to admit it; she's more becomingly dressed than the wife, who is probably too busy with club, committee or household cares to pay much attention to her appearance. The vamp has studied her type and makes the best of her good points.

But the long suit of the little gold digger is her interest. The bald-headed gentleman tells a story that was probably old when King Tut's little beard waited to take him from tempe to palace.

Does the vamp grimace like the bald-headed gentleman's wife when the old, old story is told at home? No, indeed! She listens with an air of eager anticipation. She's alert, waiting for the well-known point, which when it finally arrives is received with silvery peals of laughter. The B. H. gentleman is told what a sense of humor he has. It's killing. Does he know another?

MARTYRED LOOK

He recalls his wife's martyred look when he has told that story at the dinner table. His wife, poor, humorless creature that she is, has never appreciated what a wonderful story teller he is.

If he talks on the business situation, the vamp sits in rapt admiration at his genius, as he tells her how the hard times might be wiped out, if only there were leaders. The vamp assures him it is perfectly plain that he is one of the leaders. What a pity—pity he can't get his ideas across!

Vamps are not always young, lovely or clever but they're adepts in the art of flattery. They'd sooner tell the dullest story that ever was told at home or down town, in the world, and they apply the butter extra thick.

Shall She Ask a Substitute?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I accepted a boy to go to my sorority dance with me. He promised to give me his answer on a certain date. Three days later I received a note that he had found he could not attend any dances.

Would it be proper for me to ask another boy without asking for the first one's answer?

SORORITY GIRL.

Dear Sorority Girl: As it is more irritating than the situation you describe to invite a person to go somewhere and then to be kept dangling in the air and not know whether or not you can depend on him, I say if the boy promised to give you his answer by a certain time and then failed to keep his promise you are justified in asking someone else.

Failed to Keep Date

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I had a few dates with a young man of 25, and we both had a good times together. We had a date to go out a few nights ago but when the time came he didn't show up and failed to call me. I see him every day and have asked each time was the reason, and would not explain to me. I am a young girl of 18 years old, so I am quite sure he is not afraid of me. Please tell me what to do, as I am quite puzzled.

PUZZLED.

Dear Perplexed: Twenty-five is old enough to know better than to break a date and offer no explanation or excuse. Don't bother your head about him, don't blame yourself, don't worry, don't fret. Just forget him coolly, and I'd give the young man that temperature treatment till he did the correct thing. It is the way of expressing disdain.

Sherry Adds Flavor to Cooking

By MARTHA LEE

"HOW CAN YOU" take the same ingredients that I do but have your dishes taste so much better than mine?" demanded a week-end guest, watching the preparation of a simple creamed crab concoction.

The same ingredients, darling, but not the same seasonings. You use your canned consommé, a dash of salt and pepper for your creamed crab mixture, I season with a soupçon of paprika. But here's a less of a chef's secret—first some fancy morsel chosen in the butter into which you add the flour for your foundation sauce and a piece of cheese to go with it. Lacking either a piece of cheese or a speck of paprika put two of Worcestershire sauce in your cream sauce and a dash of salt. Lee plenty of

Then add consommé and if it is canned add a little water. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Add the sauce to the fancy bunch of prepared crab meat and cook over low heat for 5 minutes. Lynn Meets Dwight, the Famous Lawyer

What Has Gone Before

Young and pretty Lynn Harding is ambitious for a career. She is a clerk in the Seacoast Bank and Trust Company where she meets Tom Shepard, secretary to one of the bank's vice-presidents. One day, Jennie Le Grande, a model for a concern in the building is taken ill and Lynn takes her home. Lynn likes Jennie in spite of her sophisticated attitude. Tom objects to Jennie. He professes his love to Lynn but she refuses to take him seriously, although she also loves him. When he gives her a diamond ring at Christmas, Lynn explains that they can't bind each other as they have their careers to make first. She wears the ring on her right hand. When Jennie's roommate leaves to be married, Lynn goes to live with Jennie. Lynn rejects Tom's offer of marriage. Later, Sarah Dennet, Lynn's friend and chief, introduces her to David Dwight, the noted lawyer.

Now Read On

TOM FLUNG himself out of the door. When Jennie came in half an hour later Lynn was in bed. She was crying. Jennie had her moments of tact. She did not switch on the lights, but walked into her bedroom, instead, and spoke to Lynn from that distance.

"Terrible evening," reported Jennie, with a yawn. "I'm getting fed up with this sort of thing."

Lynn made no answer. She knew Jennie required none. She was grateful to Jennie. She ached all over. It was finished then. Tom had asked her to marry him and she had refused. Or had she offered to marry Tom and had he repudiated her? Both, she fancied crying quietly.

She fixed herself some breakfast at home next morning, long before Jennie was out of bed. They did not travel to work together.

But at closing time Tom was waiting by the elevators. He said, tucking her limp arm through his own.

"I'm sorry, Lynn, I must have been crazy."

It had not finished then. It was as a matter of fact just beginning. They resumed their motion pictures, their bus rides. When Tom came to the apartment he brought Slim, or made sure Jennie would be there. Jennie was incurious. What Lynn did—or did not do—was Lynn's affair.

MEETS DAVID DWIGHT

Then, one spring day, Lynn, coming into the trust officer room hesitated seeing Sarah occupied. A man sat by the desk.

"Come here, Lynn," said Sarah.

The man at the desk was David Dwight. He rose as Lynn came up and held out his hand.

He said easily, "Miss Dennet and I are old friends. She has told me so much about you."

He was a very short man, very well groomed. He had heavy gray hair, battered into sleekness. He had tired eyes and a quirked mouth and the face of a great actor, all the features mobile.

He was a great actor. He was one of the greatest trial lawyers of the generation. He had a low voice. It was an instrument of rescue or destruction, according to which side he was on. He had square long-fingered hands, not always restrained in gesture. He had that thing called "magnetism."

He was 48 years old, perhaps.

He looked at Lynn and his eyes darkened. He said lightly, "Sarah, I've bored you to death with my business. Why people die and leave their estates in my hands—even partly—is more than I can see. A more improvident and less trustworthy person never lived."

His eyes lingered on Lynn's face. He thought, vaguely, of spring in the country. His blood quickened.

"LET'S CELEBRATE"

He suggested gayly. "Let's celebrate, Sarah. Won't you and Miss Harding lunch with me? Please! I was just on my way out."

Sarah looked at Lynn. Lynn smiled. A sensational man, David Dwight. She had read about him, heard about him; she knew he had offices in the building. Why had Sarah never mentioned him?

Sarah said, "We'd like to, wouldn't we, Lynn?"

He listened to Sarah but he watched for Lynn's nod. He rose satisfied. "I'll go in and talk to Norton," he said, "until you're ready."

He smiled at them both, and together they watched him walking lightly as a cat toward the inner office. Lynn could see Tom's shoulders. She could see Tom's head now as he moved into her line of vision. He was much taller than the older man. Yet Dwight did not seem dwarfed.

She said to Sarah delightedly. "Isn't that a grand break? I never knew you knew him. He's awfully attractive, isn't he?"

"Yes," Sarah said absently.

Lynn vanished to wash her hands, to powder her nose, to draw a lipstick across her mouth with more than usual care. It was exciting, lunching with Sarah and David Dwight. He was an exciting man. A personality.

If he argued for criminals, he also argued for lost causes. He knew everybody; people who lived on Park and Fifth; people who lived on side streets; back-stage people; cinema people; people who lived in Paris, London, Rome. Policemen called him by name; gunmen knew him; dowagers knew him. He was the personal, legal representative of motion-picture stars, opera singers, millionaires, inventors, Marathon runners, prize-fighters, social leaders, murderers, thieves, bishops. His income was enormous and his extravagances a byword.

Lynn went downstairs and joined Sarah and Dwight, who were waiting.

Dwight said, "We'll go to a place I know." He laughed. "I lunched with Norton—on this Manning business, Sarah—in one of the private rooms upstairs. Murals and pewter and noiseless waiters and a million-dollar view. And," he added, "good food. But it all smelled of money. How long have you for lunch? An hour? Make it an hour and a half. I know a place with sand on the floor and whitewashed walls which has stood since the Revolution. We'll go there. Or would you rather not?" He spoke to Sarah, but his eyes were on Lynn.

Sarah said. "Anywhere you wish, David."

BREAK BARRIERS

She had always said that: anywhere; anything. Anything you wish, David; all my love; all my youth; all my passion, all myself. Break down the barriers; trample on the inhibitions; anything, David. She had said, in effect. It's over then; it must be right because you say it's over. Anything you wish.

He couldn't marry her, 20 years ago. He was beginning to be known, then. She was nobody, a raw Western girl, coming East to make her fortune. He had to marry well. To marry money. He had done so. Anything you wish, David.

Love had been over long ago; if it was over for David Dwight in 18 months and had lasted 10 years for Sarah that was another matter. It was over now. Her work satisfied her as even he had not. She had for him an affection, a loyalty which could not be conquered by months, years of neglect.

Now he came to see her occasionally. She rested and entertained him. It had been years since he had made any reference to her relations with him 20 years ago. They were friends. She disapproved of him; of his way of living, of his easy separation from his wife, of his utter lack of preoccupation with his children. But she was his friend.

Tom saw them go out, frowning. This man Dwight, what was he doing with Lynn and Sarah Dennet?

He was doing with Sarah that which he had always done. He was having his own way. Yet, as she stepped into his car and made room for Lynn and Dwight beside her and the car slid smoothly from the curb, she was not remembering that once she had been this man's sweetheart. She was not remembering that once she had staggered from madness to sanity, from suicidal desperation to a sort of apathy which approximated peace.

She was remembering nothing. You do not remember the things which are in your blood. You put no name to them. They are. They exist, part of you. You question them no longer.

And so Sarah, that woman who had been born proud and not humble, but whom love had made docile and amazed, said, "It's nice of you to take us out, David," and he answered, "It's sweet of you both to take pity on me and come"; and Lynn asked tritely, "Isn't it the most gorgeous day?" And Dwight knew that it was. He lived from in love. When he was in love he was young. And when he was young he was unafraid.

Why was Sarah not warned? Having known David Dwight as something less a man than a force of nature should she not now be on her guard?

But twenty years had passed and she belonged to the women who make a fetish of possession, the first man, the first love, which is the last. She had forgotten embraces, save in the subconscious darkness of her nature which she never contemplated now. She had forgotten days and nights. She had forgotten tears and insanity. But she had not forgotten obedience. How should she know that in asking her to luncheon—"You and Miss Harding"—he was asking her for Lynn?

He knew.

RETURNED TO OFFICE

Lynn, returning to the office from the ancient tavern to which Dwight had taken her and Sarah was late for the first time in her Seacoast Company life. She [illegible] in and went at the work on her desk with considerable animation.

"Well," commented Miss Marple, shutting a file with emphasis, "you look as if someone had left you a million and you'd started out to spend it!" She glanced carelessly at the clock.

"I had a luncheon engagement," Lynn said guiltily.

"Tell that to Sarah the Slave Driver!"

"She was part of it," Lynn said triumphantly.

She stayed late at the office that evening, to catch up. When she reached home Jennie was there ahead of her.

Lynn was greeted by a blast of blue smoke and, rushing into the kitchen, found Jennie shoving some curious-looking pork chops around on a frying pan.

"For Lord's sake, you'll have the fire department out."

"I was telephoning," admitted Jennie. "How did I know the blasted things would go up in smoke? Here!"

She shoved the frying pan into Lynn's hand, removed Lynn's hat and bore it off to the living-room closet. Returning, she swung herself up on the kitchen table and lighted a cigarette.

Daily True Story

Trafficker in Love

SHE KNEW she was indiscreet to go to Tony's apartment, but it was no time to stand on trifles. If Billy ever learned he would never forgive her. [illegible] to have her letters back, no matter what the cost.

She looked about the flat, recognizing two of the pieces that had stood in his room in Paris. She had never felt any compunction about visiting him there.

That was before she had met Billy. It was characteristic of Tony not to be on hand to greet her, though she had come from upstate at his insistent request.

[illegible] New York. [illegible] tricia Minten, only daughter of the rich and powerful Richard Minten. Merely to mention the [illegible] Paris [illegible] the Minten [illegible] herself that Tony had fallen in love with her for herself alone.

[illegible] were always so wise. No doubt [illegible] coaxing manner, before he vowed he would die if she did not return his fiery devotion.

She thought now with a blush of her damning letters, recalled some of the wild phrases, some of the burning promises.

Nothing mattered then, only Tony. She shuddered now at her naive trust in this trafficker in love, installed in a luxurious nest like a spider entangling in his web of [illegible]

A LITTLE BLACKMAIL

Tony's valet came in and [illegible]

"Ah, my dear Mademoiselle—you are here—accept my profound regrets—it is outlandish you should have to wait for so unworthy a creature, but it was unavoidable—I shall never forgive myself. It was so nice of you to come down in this cold weather—will you smoke?" He held out a gold cigarette case and she helped herself to show her indifference.

"I hope," he said at last, "that we can forget the past—that you have considered what I wrote you—"

"Your price is too high," she said calmly.

"No price is too high," he smiled. "remember what Kipling says about the sins we do by two and two and the paying for one by one. I did not ask you to write your soul out in black and white—as little bits of literature I offer you these masterpieces of yours—you gave them to me—I give them back—no, my dear Pat. I must disagree with you, no price is too high."

"What a fool I was," she burst forth.

"One lives and learns," said Tony, "you didn't think so then."

"You ask the impossible," she said tensely. "I can't get such a sum—I daren't ask for it—and if I refuse what will happen—what do you propose to do?"

He looked steadily at her. How unfortunate your young man [illegible] Victor [illegible] his views if he knew.

"Stop," she cried, "you wouldn't dare—what have you to gain—can't you let the past be past—"

Tony shrugged—"Sorry, but one does as one can and money is of the essence as they say."

Suddenly her manner changed. "Oh, well," she was almost smiling now, "so I can't move you—you knew you held the trump cards—but where are the letters—" she opened her purse.

"Ah—quite like your old self, my dear. After all why should we haggle—excuse me."

He rose and unlocked a small drawer—started back in surprise, turned, stared at her, "They've gone—you—you've stolen them!"

RETURNED AT LAST

"Gone," her terror was as great as his own—"I—would I be here bargaining for them if I had them—don't be a fool."

He opened the door for her—his face white—"Listen—you'll hear from me—I have an idea—but you'll hear from me."

She went down the elevator like one in a daze. As she stumbled along the walk she heard a voice at her side saying—"Please cross the street into the park—I will follow—I am Mr. Tony's valet; perhaps you remember me in Paris—"

She crossed into the shadow of the park trees—The valet joined her, and thrust a small packet into her hand. "Listen," he said hurriedly, "once in Paris I was in trouble—you remember?—and you gave me a thousand franc note—"

He was gone—she [illegible] a light, tore open the package and saw her salvation.

Don't Gasp At.. Lily Damita's FIGURE!

Eat two salads daily covered with Hellmann's Mayonnaise and within 60 days you, too, may regain the slenderness of youth!

Now how does provocative Mlle. Damita keep her figure so slender? How does she protect her ravishing bodily grace? By violent physical exercise? By starvation diets?

All she does is EAT SENSIBLY. She cuts out heavy, fattening foods. And in their place, substitutes two inexpensive salads daily . . . one at lunch, another at dinner . . . covered with Hellmann's Mayonnaise. So simple . . . yet so effective!

Indeed, as Mlle. Damita says in her fascinating broken English, "That Hellmann Plan, it is so easy! It takes the weight off in just the right places . . . and in two months' time you will look and feel just wonderful!"

Why don't you start this slenderizing plan at once? Two salads daily . . . a minimum of fattening foods. Follow this plan faithfully, and you can regain much of the slenderness and health that you may so envy in others.

But always insist on Hellmann's, the quality mayonnaise. It is made of only the finest vinegars, oils, eggs, and spices. Then, double-whipped for extra creamy smoothness.

But we warn you! Recently certain mayonnaise makers have started using inferior fillers in a frantic effort to lower their prices and thus fool the public. This the makers of Hellmann's flatly refused to do. Hellmann's Mayonnaise remains absolutely uncheapened, absolutely unchanged. At your grocer's then, tomorrow.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

FANNING

With GEORGE UNDERWOOD

Sounding the Call for Tomorrow's Great Meet

Whoops, My Dear! What's this? Another speedy son of Uncle Sam, who is likely to fling his feet in the face of Gene Venzke the long lean Mercury Footer who all the experts said was unbeatable at the mile? First the wise ones conceded Pen Hallowell of Harvard an even chance of beating Venzke. Then along came Henry Brocksmith, the corn fed boy from Indiana. A week ago Brocksmith was led home by a stocky young Kansan yclept Glenn Cunningham. Cunningham scooted the mile in 4:11 1-10, figures never approached by Venzke over the cinders. The same day that Cunningham was leading home Brocksmith over the mile route in record time, young Ward Hardman of the Navy was romping home 60 yards ahead of the field in the 1500 meter event at the Middle Atlantic Olympic tryouts in the slashing time of 3:52 4-5. Those 1500 meter figures made by the Navy flyer you who know your athletic onions will recognize as being two and one fifth seconds faster than our own Lloyd Hahn's American 1500 meter record and only one and four-fifths seconds behind the world's accepted 1500 record held by Peltzer of Germany and 3 2-5 seconds behind the Frenchman Ladomegues unofficial figures of 3:49 1-5.

Young Mr. Hardman of the Navy and young Mr. Venzke of the New York A. C. are both going to answer the call to post in the 1500-meter event at the Eastern Olympic Tryouts in the Harvard Stadium, tomorrow and Saturday. Considering the Navy flyer's American figure-fracturing feat last week, it looks as if Venzke will have to wreck a world's record to lead Uncle Sam's young seadog home on Saturday. You'll find many experts who believe that it will be Hardman, not Venzke who will do the record wrecking here in the big meet in the Stadium. Mister Hardman of the Navy has arrived!

Ward Hardman

There is a possibility that Pen Hallowell may start in the 1500 meter event on Saturday. It [illegible] a three cornered 'dog fight' [illegible]. Present plans, however, call for Hallowell to start in the 800 meter event alone. Hallowell will go after the world's 800 meter record in one of the trial heats tomorrow. Despite the fact that many believe the Harvard flyer is capable of doing [illegible] and beating the sensational time made by Ben Eastman, the Californian, recently, Pen may have his troubles beating the field that will face him on Saturday.

Answering the call to post in the 800-meter event will be a field of 1:54 or better half milers. Included in the flock are Otto Rosner, who beat Gene Venzke at 1000 yards, and his clubmate, George Bullwinkle, of Harvard and the New York A. C. who is running faster than ever; Carlton Noyes, of N. H. State; Al Lee, the sensational young colored Brown freshman; Eddie Blake, of the Boston A. A.; F. B. Tuttle, the old Yalensian, now competing for the New Haven Harriers, and young Ed McGuigan of Catholic University. In this neck of the woods they don't know much about McGuigan. He's a pippin, however. Hails from Balboa in the Canal Zone and has records of 1:53 for the half and 48 seconds for the quarter. And so, considering the calibre of the field, it behooves Mister Hallowell of Harvard not to count his chickens before they're hatched.

They'll crack 48 seconds as sure as you're born in the 400 meter event in the Stadium. Look over this field—Pete Bowen of the New York A. C., Karl Warner of Yale, J. K. Edwards of Penn, A. E. Keown of Princeton, Arnold Adams of Bates, McGuigan of Catholic University, Bernie McCaferty of Holy Cross, Sumner and Smith of the Boston A. A., Henry Fulmer of Duke University, Wakefield Burke of the Newark A.C. and T. F. Locke, the Harvard Freshie, who did 49 seconds on the chin strap. Pick a winner out of that field, boys! Look out, Father Time, or you'll be tripping on your whiskers!

The Olympic [illegible] in the 5000-meter event and [illegible] meter event [illegible] 3000 meter steeple [illegible] field [illegible] except [illegible] pole vault [illegible] tomorrow [illegible] the 5000 meter run [illegible] McCluskey [illegible] Boston A. A. [illegible] the New York A. C. [illegible] Intercollegiate [illegible] champion [illegible] Gus Moore of the [illegible] Crescent A. C. [illegible] against a great field [illegible] Princeton [illegible] Joe McCluskey [illegible] Walter [illegible] the Millrose A. A. [illegible] Walter [illegible] second to George Lermond [illegible] the Met [illegible] N. E. C. [illegible] two mile champion [illegible] Frank Murphy of Harvard [illegible] New England [illegible] of Fordham [illegible] B. A. A. [illegible] of Fordham.

George Spitz, the sensational young N. Y. collegian who cleared 6 feet 8½ inches in a world's record jump here over the boards last winter is the favorite in the high jump, and Leo Sexton, who made a new record with the shot at the same B. A. A. meet likewise is favored to win in the shot. Spitz has been troubled with an injured ankle, but now is reported stronger than ever. Sexton recently did 51 feet or better in five out of six attempts, an unprecedented performance.

Except in the Olympics [illegible] greater galaxy of pole vaulters ever [illegible] together than will [illegible] on Saturday. Included in the [illegible] Fred Sturdy, of the Los Angeles A. C. [illegible] Brown, Ted [illegible] [illegible] of the New York A. C.

Leo Sexton

Young Garrett of Princeton who is entered in both shot and discus, is a son of Bob Garrett, who won the discus throw at the first modern Olympics in Athens in 1896. Jim Connolly, who saw Garrett's dad win at Athens 36 years ago and incidentally won one first and two seconds himself, will be on hand to cheer the young Princetonian tomorrow and Saturday. Wiseacres say Gene Record should have entered the 400 meter hurdles instead of the 110 meter fence flying event... Only a broken leg can prevent Percey Beard from beating Record over the 110 meter route... Emmet Toppino, the sensational New Orleans sprinter, will leap from his mark in the 100 meter event... There isn't any 56-pound weight throw so old Pat McDonald, many times champion, will strive against the young bloods in the hammer throw.

Sharkey's Timing Perfect—Bronson

By JACK CONWAY

How does Sharkey look?" I asked Jimmy Bronson.

"When you can call your punches, and also get out of the way of the other fellow's socks you're ready to step into action.

They have been telling me Sharkey is carrying excess weight around his waist line. I didn't notice any fat there. Jack of course is showing a certain heaviness that goes with the advancing years, but I wouldn't say he is packing around any extra poundage.

"Did Sharkey show you anything?" I asked.

"Plenty," responded Engle. "All he needs to lick Schmeling is to use his left and right hands as he did today. Short left hooks and jabs, with an occasional right cross to the head, will beat the German.

"Sharkey has the tools with which to beat Schmeling. I feel he will use them this time."

Sharkey blazed away for three rounds with Sekyra and then clowned around with Charley An[illegible] on a [illegible] of camp [illegible]. The workouts with Sekyra have speeded Sharkey up.

Sharkey will take a layoff today. He will resume this training tomorrow and will work through Sunday. He will only do light exercises on Monday.

Schmeling Confines Training to Links

The champion will work out today and following another day's respite from the ring will again engage his spar mates Saturday.

Down on Fish Pier—or Was It in Garden?

By GEORGE UNDERWOOD

Down on Fish Pier—eh, beg pardon—down in the Boston Garden last night, they settled the longshoremen's strike or something or other, as far as we could make out, and a big dock walloper named Jack Washburn sent a brother member of Local Union 606, Charlie Strack, to the hospital.

They called it a wrestling match. But the only other thing we ever saw that resembled it was the night Big Pi[illegible] Lecroix [illegible] in five of Long F[illegible] bit off one ear and [illegible] where the other ear was back in the old lumberjack days on the Shawanaga.

It made a Donnybrook at an old fashioned Pathron Day in County Wicklow as quiet and gentle-like as a meeting of the Old Ladies' Sewing Circle. It was as dignified as a wild night in the insane asylum.

Most of the time the pair were slugging each other in the slats or kicking one another [illegible] [illegible] an eye [illegible] off an ear. There was more hair pulling than a [illegible] Convention in [illegible] while they were [illegible] just as an excuse for the [illegible] of Ernie Reeber, the [illegible] Roman champion who [illegible] referee [illegible] wondered [illegible] or something or other.

STRACK K. O.'D BUT WANTS RETURN GO

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

Gentleman Jack Washburn is today sticking his chest out to record proportions, Charlie Strack is recovering rapidly and scientists have at last discovered what happens when an immovable object meets an irresistible force.

All of which comes as a result of the battle of the baddest of mad men at the Boston Garden, where 12,000 sat in to see 20 minutes of mutual torture.

Strack gave punches [illegible] Washburn until near the finish. He gouged his eyes, tried to rip open his mouth, pulled his hair, twisted his nose and [illegible] his ears. Punches flew as in a good lightweight fight and there was more kissing than at a national convention.

BILLY URBANSKI — TONY PIET

Another putout was chalked up for Piet as he sent Urbanski back to the Braves bench in the sixth and then threw to first in an effort to stage a double killing. The Pirates won out, 5-2. The Tribe will try to shake its jinx today, and even the count with the Bucs. These Pirates are travelling on high and are real flag contenders.

REFEREE KOEBER CHARLEY STRACK JACK WASHBURN

This isn't a daily dozen. Only Strack and Washburn spinning on their respective necks in the Garden ring. Maybe Strack became dizzy from this whirling dervish stunt, for Washburn whirled and slammed Charley to sleep to win the bout. Strack was unable to continue.

Close N. L. Race Fails to Thrill Gibson

By JOE CASHMAN

George "Iron Man" Gibson, the Canadian gentleman farmer who knows our national pastime so well that he is employed by the Pittsburgh Pirates to instruct a group of American lads how to play it, sees nothing exceptional in the closeness of the National League race which, today, finds only 7½ games separating the leader and tail-ender.

In reminiscing [illegible] Gibson [illegible]

"On the train going back to Pittsburgh after losing the flag," he reveals, "Manager Fred Clarke opened his traveling bag and found two old baseballs. He pulled them out and fired them through a closed window of the car, smashing the glass into bits. 'I never want to see a baseball again,' he shouted, and we all felt the same way about it. We quickly forgot about it, though, and returned the next year to win the pennant."

Gibson Sure Bucs Will Make Foes Step

[illegible]

"There are eight pretty good clubs in the circuit this year," he opines. "The Pirates, after a poor start, have been playing the best ball in the league for weeks and I think they will keep on improving. The Braves and Cubs, the two clubs above us, are dangerous. So are the Cards, even though we have been quite successful against them, and the Giants.

"Brooklyn, Philadelphia and Cincinnati may not be quite as strong as the others I have mentioned but all three are troublesome.

"In such a race the old hustle counts and we have it. I think we have as good chance as the next club to finish in front."

Gibson is delighted to be back in harness after a five-year absence from the game during which he took life easy on his farm in Ontario.

Iron Man Thought Diamond Days Were Done

He never dreamed he would be back in baseball this year until he was offered the Pittsburgh berth by the late Barney Dreyfuss last December. It is the second time he has piloted the Bucs. He led them before in 1920-1-22.

The term "Iron Man," which we apply to him is of our own coinage. He deserves it. In 1909 he caught 150 out of 153 games for the Pirates and then went on to catch seven games against the Tigers in the World's Series, in which he nailed Ty Cobb every time the fleet

"Catching is a cinch," he claims. "At least, I found it so and with all the trick deliveries that were being thrown in my prime it was harder to catch than it is now. It used to be harder work for me to sit on the bench than it was to work back of the bat."

Mr. Boston

—By JACK CONWAY—

Orangeburg, N. Y., June 16—I asked Bill Carey how the sale on the Sharkey-Schmeling bout was progressing. He called the box office on the telephone, and one of the ticket men was asked to furnish the tab on the title show.

"Just $85,000 in cash and $150,000 in sure reservations," was the information conveyed to Carey.

"We have placed 30,000 seats on sale at $2.20," said the Garden chief. "There will be 17,000 more tickets at $3.74. This will give 47,000 seats at low prices.

"In addition there will be thousands of seats at $10, $15 and $23.

Mr. Boston

"There has been a tremendous demand for choice ringside seats. We are now selling back in the 30th row. As every seat in the arena is elevated, everybody will have a clear view of what happens.

"I look for the greatest crowd that has witnessed a heavyweight championship bout since Sharkey and Schmeling fought two years ago."

Mike McTigue says Sharkey will win. Mike has always been strong for Sharkey since the latter stopped him in 12 rounds. And also because Jack stopped Wills in 13 rounds when neither Dempsey nor Tunney would tackle the Black Panther.

[illegible]

[illegible]

Gene Roman, ace referee of the New Jersey Athletic Commission, who saw Sharkey work here, says the American champion will win unless Schmeling has a defense for Jack's in-fighting. Sharkey now keeps shooting short, deadly punches when at close quarters.

AFTER A DECADE WRITER REVERTS TO HOBBY

—By GILBERT SELDES

IT IS NOW TEN YEARS SINCE—by a happy accident—I hit upon a series of subjects which made writing a pleasure, paid me rather well, and got me into trouble which I would hardly say will follow me to the end of my days, but which still crops up from time to time, as when I read that one of these days I'll discover that Buster Keaton is funny or Bugs Baer a great wit. My real discovery of ten years ago was that no one was writing about a lot of people who were tremendously entertaining, and that while pretty poor actresses and worse dramatists had books and magazine articles devoted to them, men of the first order, in another class, were popular with millions of people and neglected by the intellectuals alone. This neglect I attempted to end, out of gratitude to those who had given me pleasure and out of a lively sense of needing more money than I was earning.

GILBERT SELDES

The Great Krazy

The actual start came through George Herriman, the creator of our immortal Krazy Kat. A ballet, with music by John Alden Carpenter, and settings on a roller-towel arrangement by Herriman himself, was to be given, and, being an enthusiast, I thought good publicity might be found in an article on Krazy and the other comic strips. John Peale Bishop, then managing editor of Vanity Fair, encouraged the idea, and after the article had been published allowed me, with a little doubt at first, to go on writing about popular songs, jazz music, dancing, vaudeville, the movies and the allied arts of entertainment. I had a good time. I made a few friends, and I was able to go abroad and rewrite all the pieces into a whole book.

Missing the Point

It seems incredible, now, that the first point of the book should have been missed. The point was that the people whom I admired were tremendously popular. With one or two exceptions each was the acknowledged master in his or her field; the jazzmasters received thousands a week, the comic strip artists were syndicated in hundreds of papers; yet no critic had ever ventured [illegible]

There are 294 or 295 of them which would involve an ankle ascent of 220 feet. Enough ...

Killer of Police Chief Is Caught

New York, June 16 (AP)—A man who described himself as John [illegible] when he was arrested admitted in police lineup today that he is Kelly Yale Hendrix, 35, who jumped $200,000 bail in Gastonia, N. C., where he and six others were convicted of the murder in 1929 of Chief of Police O. F. Aderholt.

Detroit Building Is Damaged by Bomb

Detroit, June 16 (AP)—An explosion which police said apparently was caused by a bomb wrecked a rear wall of the Proctor Creamery Company building, a one-story structure, early today. No one was injured.

Frank Shepenski, owner of the creamery, said he had received no threats.

Wife Spanked for Bridge Wins Divorce

Los Angeles, June 16 (AP)—Mrs. Harry K. Bally played contract with her husband but, she told a judge, she didn't contract for a spanking.

"I didn't play the way he wanted," she said, "so he turned me over his knee and spanked me." She got her divorce.

On the Air

The Chicago Stadium, scene of the Republican convention, is used for prize fights, and over each side of the hall is a sign reading "Next Fight," the date being blank. And you've got to hand it to the radio feller who filled in the date "June 27th," when the Democrats meet.

NBC will b'dcast the Sharkey-Schmeling fight if a sponsor can be persuaded to pay expenses plus...Ralph Kirbery, NBC Dream Singer, has signed to b'dcast for a yr. with the Sun. WBZ Shoe Melodies p'gram...WEEI's Daily Tattler will betake itself an eve. spot, 6 p. m. starting June 27...Bath Club soon says adios to CBS .. Olympic tryouts at Harvard stadium Fri. and Sat. will be WNACed with the following on the ann'ncing corps: Win Marling, Gerry Harrison, Irwin Cowper, Gordon Jones and the versatile Johnny Neagle. With so many helpers it's a sure bet the boys won't be tired...Paul Whiteman, Henry Hadley, Jerome Kern and Sigmund Romberg will be guest conductors on a special NBC p'gram Sun. honoring Victor Herbert...Grace Moore sings her last on the tire p'gram June 29 ..Ray Atwill wasn't on last night's WEEI Oil p'gram after all. Sponsors changed their minds about him at the last moment. When Mort Downey leaves CBS in July his 7 p. m. p'grams will be taken over by [illegible] Gary, the Eddie Cantor imitator on the Ziggy hour.

Stray Thought No. 33: Rudy Vallee made his radio debut in England, but it was in America where he won fame. Which leads one to believe that altho America won the war England was smart enough to avert one.

Ethel Waters will be heard on the air several times this and next week during special Met theater programs ... About the prettiest melody radioed in a long time was a new type modern rhythm heard on the Sun. WAAB Gaucho program. It's called "Tango Nocturne" and should become, in the near future, one of the Great American Ear Aches ... Another pretty ditty that's filling up plenty air time is "When the Clouds Roll By." ... But since the "Peanut Vendor" American ears have been fairly free of constant repetition.

Suggestion for anti-Ted Husing list'rs: Why not vote for him for vice pres? That would be one way of banishing him from the public eye—and ear.

Girl About Town

—By ALYCE SIEMENS—

March of Our Heroes:

By ALYCE SIEMENS

What is this sinister, clipclopping din?
Who are these scarecrows so ragged and thin?
Clippety-clop through the rain and the mire—
Who are these bogies so many and dire?
Once into blood-spattered mire we went—

—Red-White-Blue.

Par in Romance

If the sand traps and bunkers could only talk out there at the Brae Burn Country Club—and tell us more of Commonwealth avenue's wealthy and stunning Al Gregory who's romancing as he golfs with that famous Chicago medico's daughter [illegible] looking Mary Coggeshall . . . He journeyed to the Windy City for Mary, broke his wrist in so doing, but the wrist and arm movement seems okay now! . . . And when golfing pals will be [illegible] on the [illegible] . . . Heavy [illegible] going on out there at Brae Burn too between Commonwealth avenue's Ronald Stanley Field—who breaks an easy 120 now and then and Short Hills' (N. J.) Polly Stuart who's in our midst with Ruth Warfield . . . And those gals will do plenty of damage to the smarter Strong Hearts who flutter after them [illegible] . . . Local gals start reconnoitering at once!

It Gets You Eventually!

Romance, we mean! . . . They pointed out the most bashful couple at the Tuesday Nite Club's Belmont Springs Country Club dance night before last . . . Arlington's John Donahue and Brighton's Sally Sullivan . . . They were far from bashful we thought—or else they were in a world of their own! . . . Pennies being saved by their friends, for wedding gifts, just in case Arlington's Alice Brosnahan does decide to suddenly haul her bridal veil to the altar to meet Waltham's John Cooley . . . They've been one-and-onlying for a quartette of years now . . . 's high time! . . . New romance we unearthed . . . And doing quite all right . . . Is that of Waltham's Adrian Condion and Brighton's Patricia Ruane who began saying those things they like to hear under a Cape Cod moon just recently! . . . And it's a cinch that you'll not have to wait much longer for Brookline's Jack Gallagher and Malden's Dorothy Thompson to heed those wedding bells that are beginning to ring . . .

It's a Boy!

That cunning little dog that's [illegible] a back seat out Arlington [illegible] belongs to Major Robert [illegible] who's too over-joyed with the arrival of his second grandchild last week-end to toss dog biscuits . . . We're not sure about Jack "Gossipers" Shannon casting his bread on the waters but we do know that his pet diversion at [illegible] banquets is casting bread at ladies fair whom he does not know! . . . We heard via the air yesterday the NBC (Republican Convention) announcer who twice referred to "My Country 'Tis Of Thee" as the national anthem with most of us [illegible] remembering that he was right at that . . . And that it's not "Sweet Adeline" after all! . . . Somerville's chairman of the Licensing Board Eugene Hudson has been attending bachelor dinners with a [illegible] but still continues his search for the Perfect Woman . . .

Could She Help It?

Did we suppress a chuckle when we heard that broad-"a"-voiced girl, who ringsided at a recent wrestling wrangle, confide to her neighbor that she just knew that certain show-offy wrestler was flirting with her . . . Such winks! . . . Etc. . . . She probably never heard about rosin-dusty eyes!

More Pickups

Nice-mannered Andrew J. O'Connor has a [illegible] Cape Cod tan coating and two of the loveliest of sisters Marion and Rose . . . What's all this [illegible] spatting in the breezes whirling about Milton's Larry S[illegible] and Arlington's Gladys S[illegible] . . . When we happen to know that handsome Larry would like nothing better than an altaring . . . How's ta 'bout a get-together there? . . . Leonard Sprague, ballet master and lecturer of physical education at Boston "U," will go in for teaching dancing in the big manner during the daytime this fall at Jack Brown's Attic Studio . . . With a staff of society gals who'll teach . . . But for the next three months he'll be up in the White Mountains picking smart ideas out of the air after he climbs that mountain! . . . Brookline's man-about-town bachelor, Freddie K. Mougey, has been basking in the California sunshine these three weeks now . . . He's gone West to witness the Olympics events during his vacation . . . But, let's see now . . . Our good friend glamorous Gilda Gray is also in California isn't she? . . . And didn't we tell you once upon a time about Freddie's yenning that way?

Myrna Loy Takes Her Place

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service
(Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.)

Los Angeles, June 16—Zita Johann is going home. Unlike Greta Garbo's famous words, "I go home," Miss Johann's ultimatum is definite, final and concluding. She is leaving Hollywood and us because she is unwilling to play a heavy. The trouble started when she was put into "Thirteen Women."

David Selznick felt he was giving her a big opportunity in "Thirteen Women," which is one of their important pictures, but apparently she had other ideas. She objected to being a wicked woman so she packed up the little old suitcase and said goodbye.

Louella O. Parsons

Miss Johann's burst of temperament—or maybe it isn't temperament, maybe she feels she is right—gives Myrna Loy a chance. Miss Loy was today put into the role vacated by the foreign visitor.

Denial from Radio

Strong denial at Radio that Ann Harding is battling the studio and refusing to play opposite Richard Dix in "The Conqueror." Ann is vacationing somewhere and she is due to return next week to take over the story with David Selznick. "The Conqueror" will have three outstanding members in the cast, Richard Dix, Ann Harding and Edna May Oliver. Miss Oliver, who left hurriedly for New York to play here original part in "Show Boat" is coming back.

Chatter in Hollywood

Wed, Kay Francis and Kenneth MacKenna finally left town at 3 o'clock yesterday morning. All the preceding evening Kay and Paramount were in deep discussion on whether she would remain and collect the large sum offered her to play the lead in Ernst Lubitsch's next picture or whether she and Ken would take their much-talked-of trip to Europe. The deal was on and off a dozen times. In fact, it was not until 10 minutes before the much sought-after Miss Francis took the plane for New York that she finally agreed to return and play the [illegible]. After a little shopping and theater-going in the big town she will return to Hollywood to make the picture. That means no Europe for Kay and Kenneth until another time. Jan Rubini is entertaining an exclusive few on the stage at Loew's State Theater with a [illegible] [illegible] to one of the noted guests will act as hostess [illegible] in receiving. Lloyds Plan Trip

Harold and Mildred Lloyd will take that long-talked of trip to New York. Harold was all set for a European jaunt, but the Olympic Games are keeping him in California. Before he takes the [illegible] he will visit Ernest Truex in "Whistling in the Dark" and take a look at the Truex technique. You see Harold is still considering Joseph Schenck's offer to bring this comedy to the screen. Down at Malibu, Barbara Stanwyck is forgetting work. She is taking a long vacation with her husband Frank Fay. All her contract troubles are settled and she knows she has pictures both at Columbia and Warner brothers. Darryl Zanuck, head of Warner Brothers, returns June 27. At that time he will discuss "The Purchase Price" with her, her next picture. The Marx brothers are ganging up to get ready for new gags. They begin work in a couple of weeks on "Horsefeathers."

Thus the Twin Stars Shine On

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

Few [illegible] the fan favor to the extent enjoyed by Dorothy Mackaill and Jack Mulhall. When we interviewed Dorothy, she gave her former partner in many pictures as fine a boost as we have ever heard in the profession.

"Has Jack Mulhall been along yet?" she queried.

No—and we hadn't at that time learned he was booked to headline at Loew's Orpheum, beginning tomorrow, as a special feature secured by Manager Victor J. Morris.

"When he comes to Boston," pursued Dorothy, "be sure to meet him. He is one of God's own, the finest, cleanest, ablest young man you can meet. For years I worked in films with him. He was the life of the party always, witty, and as bright as the sunshine, all kindness and sympathy.

"To know this young Irish star is to know the best Hollywood can offer. Boston will certainly fall in love with him."

Exeter Theater

FRANCE LOSES BATTLE ON AMERICAN GOLD

By B. C. FORBES

THE UNITED STATES has won. France has lost.

The vicious financial attack on America, led by France and participated in by several other European countries, has been gloriously repulsed. This country unhesitatingly has met every foreign demand for gold. Our stock has been reduced fully a billion dollars, yet it remains quite as large as it was during the boom.

I am told by heads of leading banks that the Bank of France has used up practically all its American deposits. Also the amount now owed other countries has been so cut that no embarrassing withdrawals can possibly be made.

France may draw home some of her rather large amount of earmarked gold—that is, gold which has already been deposited in vaults here for her account and which no longer figures in America's banking statements.

My guess is that the next important international gold flow will be into America.

Increase Looms in Dollar Value

The prospect is that the value of the American dollar, as measured in other currencies, will substantially increase as soon as definite signs of business betterment arise. Foreign investors will recognize the superior attractions of American bonds and stocks, and extensive buying is likely to develop.

The United States has demonstrated that it is financially impregnable, that it is on the gold standard to stay, that it is abundantly able to meet all obligations.

Speedy Recovery Foreseen

More. When recuperation starts in earnest, the pace in this young, rich, resourceful country logically will be much faster than in any of the older nations. Youth-like, we habitually go to extremes. Did we not go to unprecedented extremes with our boom? Have we not gone to unprecedented extremes on the return trip? What vast room now for a rebound in values!

Bonds are regarded by even the most conservative of the old-school bankers as ridiculously cheap. Many stocks of seasoned, well-managed, financially strong companies are purchasable for an old song.

Not in the memory of man has cotton been so cheap; rubber never before approached such depths; copper is in exactly the same extraordinary position; sugar, silk, oil, silver and a hundred and one other commodities are dragging far below cost of production. Farm lands, real estate, properties of almost all kinds have been deflated beyond all reason.

Loans have been squeezed down unconscionably. Brokers' loans have tumbled from $8,600,000,000 to $373,000,000, a drop of over 95 per cent. Other borrowers know how they have been called upon to reduce their obligations. Thus the way has been paved for enormous expansion of credit when confidence returns.

Bad News Losing Its Terror

So pessimistic—so fatalistic—had sentiment become after Congress ran amuck that it is now noted that unfavorable news often fails to have any visible effect and that favorable news is acclaimed. "Blessed is he who expecteth nothing." The financial community, having resigned itself to the very worst news, manifests relief when anything short of the worst happens.

Whereas, the very worst was feared from Congress, the very worst has not been visited upon the country. The latest intimations are that Congress will very shortly end its activities. Little further probing is anticipated. There is unparalleled lack of nervousness over the coming presidential campaign.

Since nothing but bad news has been counted upon from Europe, some modest measure of comfort has been derived from the turn events have, at least for the moment, taken.

Thus has it come about that sentiment is today less jumpy in the highest financial circles than it has been in weeks. The ranks of the optimists have been joined by a number of notable recruits.

Financial Market News

—STATE ST. Hears:

That the market has done very well for those who had the nerve to step into stocks on Monday. In fact, profits were no tempting many traders accepted them. On the setback, they expect, it will be time enough to consider the long side again. If none materializes it will not do a great deal of harm to be on the sidelines. After all, stocks will always be on the board and no one has yet devised a rule to prevent buying.

Effect of Repeal

Now that the nation's [illegible] conventions are forcing the prohibition question into the next [illegible] State St is busy wondering [illegible] what it may mean [illegible] wise. If one major party decision on repeal it will have a tremendous effect on pa[illegible] which would undoubtedly be [illegible] in higher share prices. In practice, effect is also [illegible] the matter of time needed [illegible] for repeal.

Apparently it would require about three or four years before liquors would actually return as a source of revenue to the national and state governments. At least that is the advice of competent Washington observers. Another obstacle from the practical side is that adoption by either party does not make it incumbent upon congressmen to vote for repeal. This delay and uncertainty tempt optimism.

Boardroom Briefs

It also is said in the event repeal is passed by Congress, that there might be an even longer delay in getting 32 states to ratify the act . . . In the meantime, the big thing would be the stopping of the alcohol drain on the treasury to enforce prohibition. Such [illegible] signs of importance to [illegible] the alcohol group . . . There is especially true of National Distillers.

Secretary Stone in addressing the American Can directors last week [illegible] Commercial Science [illegible] porting a falling off in earnings the company would likely show [illegible] . . . The reason is the liberal use the company made of large depreciation reserves in the past [illegible] now carried at one dollar and there is hardly need to fear of impending large writeoffs . . . .

The record behind American Tobacco "B" seems less secretive . . . Apparently they are willing to have folks know that the company will soon be better than an average [illegible] . . . But they say nothing about the chance some of the smaller tobacco companies will [illegible] . . . Wait and look before you buy [illegible] . . . What looks hushes under the guidance of big operators if the gossips are right.

BOSTON STOCK EXCHANGE OPEN TOMORROW

By FRANK H. MELOON

Decision of the Boston Stock Exchange to remain open tomorrow Bunker Hill Day was flashed over the tape today. From 1913 to 1927 inclusive the Boston Stock Exchange honored the local holiday by closing, but in 1928 resulted its former practice of ignoring the holiday. To show how short is the average human memory, we know of no fewer than a score of workers in the financial district who thought the decision to stay open tomorrow was something brand new. And of course, there were others . . . .

President Howard Cooley of the Walworth Co., former president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce expresses appreciation of constructive work carried on in this country. In the sales tax movement, involving abolition of nuisance taxes and other crushing levies, dead Mr. Cooley does not think so. He tells me: "During the past few months I have talked with many industrial leaders and bankers in the East and in the Middle West. As a result of these talks, I am convinced that the sales tax is the least objectionable of any of the proposed remedies. The sales tax spreads the burden broadly and logically. Its effect on the individual, whether rich or poor, is slight. It follows that sound American policy of universal participation. It is comparatively simple to administer and definite in its results."

Howard Cooley

RAIL BUYING HELPS STOCKS TO ADVANCE

New York, June 16—Rail buying helped important shares to advance in trading on the New York Stock Exchange today. The market encountered some resistance as it neared the peak of the upturn of a fortnight ago, but, after some hesitancy, the general list managed to creep higher under carrier leadership.

Factors making for hesitancy may have been the opening of the Lausanne conference, and the appearance of the bonus bill in the Senate, but further pronounced strength of the dollar in the foreign exchange markets, and a good tone in bonds, helped to maintain a fair degree af cheer.

BUYING OF RAILS

Stocks reacted moderately in the late trading and closed irregular, although rails, although rails, which had featured an early advance, retained much of their improvement.

Atchison, Union Pacific, New York Central, Southern Pacific and other leading carriers were up from a fraction to a point.

On the other hand, American Telephone, American Can, Eastman, U. S. Steel and Case showed narrow losses. Transactions approximated 900,000 shares.

Sugars remained firm, with Central Aguirre up nearly 2. Such issues as U. S. Steel, American Can and General Electric were up fractionally.

Buying of the rails lacked any tangible basis in the news, most of which has been distinctly adverse to the carriers. Nevertheless, a better feeling toward these issues appeared to have developed in some quarters, possibly reflecting the expectation that all July 1 interest payments will be met.

LOANS TO OWNERS

There has also been some expectation that proposed government loans for self liquidating projects might include railroad loans to improve equipment. There has also been some vague discussion of possible loans to railroads with which to buy their own bonds for retirement at current depressed levels.

The adverse report of the Senate finance committee on the bonus measure was soon followed by a better tone in stocks, but this seemed to have been largely a coincidence, since most financial quarters have not expected enactment of the measure. This has been evident in the good tone in U. S. governments and in the dollar.

Sugar stocks continued to improve in response to the betterment in the statistical position in that commodity.

Prime Minister MacDonald's statement at the initial session that Europe must have the help of the United States met with some approval but little enthusiasm in banking quarters, where it was pointed out that early developments of that character seemed doubtful.

Dollar a Barrel Predicted for Crude

Los Angeles, June 16—Dollar a barrel basis for crude oil in California oil fields by Friday is assured and the industry will be on the road to economic rehabilitation Neal H. New Tax Effect on Profits Studied

New York, June 16—How the new tax bill will affect corporation profits is analyzed as follows by the Standard Statistics Company of New York:

AUTOMOBILES—The 3 per cent impost on passenger cars, and 2 per cent on trucks, will doubtless be passed along to consumers, as was the case formerly when this tax was levied.

COPPER—The impost of 4 cents per pound on imports will serve to shut out foreign low-cost metal from domestic markets.

MATCHES—Tax of 2 cents per 1000 (one-half cent per 1000 paper matches) will probably be distributed between manufacturers and distributors with the result that profits would be affected only slightly.

MECHANICAL REFRIGERATORS—The 5 per cent tax will amount to much less than recent price reductions by leading manufacturers and can probably be passed on without materially restricting sales.

MOTION PICTURES AND THEATERS—Tax of 10 per cent on admissions over 40 cents will undoubtedly serve to curtail box office receipts in some measure, although the average price of admission to movie houses is only 35 cents.

PETROLEUM PRODUCTS—Tax of 1 cent per gallon on domestic sales of gasoline and 4 cents per gallon on lubricating oil probably will be passed on to the consumer, with little adverse influence on consumption. Import levies of 2½ cents per gallon on gasoline, 4 cents per gallon on lubricating oil and one-half cent per gallon on crude and derivatives other than those first mentioned are likely to restrict imports and result in shifts in the international markets.

21 P. C. Increase for Paid Air Travel Is Announced

A TWENTY-ONE per cent increase in revenue passengers carried by United Air Lines in May over April was announced today by President P. G. Johnson. Revenue passengers in April were 6885 and in May 8367, with the New York-Chicago-Pacific Coast line carrying 5141 and its Chicago-Fort Worth-Dallas and Seattle-San Diego lines the balance. Air mail totalled 160 tons, an increase of 2.4 per cent over April. Air express showed a nominal increase.

During May United flew 1,120,238 miles, two-thirds of which was with tri-motored passenger transports and completed 98.3 per cent of all mileage scheduled.

United Air Lines has arranged its operating program to insure maximum use of its equipment during the summer months when air travel is at its peak, pending delivery this fall of the first of the new type Boeing twin-engined, all-metal, Wasp-powered transports which will carry 10 passengers, 800 pounds of mail and express and two pilots. These planes will be the fastest multi-motored ships in the world.

STUBER FINDS BUSINESS GAIN

Rochester, N. Y., June 16—"Six weeks abroad hardly qualifies me to speak with authority about European conditions generally," President Stuber said, "but I will sa ythat our business there is picking up. The Nagel factory in Stuttgart is working overtime and the plant is being enlarged. Things are picking up nicely at the factory in Paris."

While Mr. Stuber declined to discuss domestic affairs of the company, saying he was not familiar with its current operations, it is understood that the Nagel cameras will be introduced into this country around July 1 and that preparations have been made for dealer distribution throughout the United States. It is also understood that Kodak shortly will announce the introduction of a lower priced cinekodak, which will place at least 70 per cent of the camera works employes back to work within the next 30 days.

Above picture, snapped in Chicago especially for posterity, shows historic conference between club women and Congressman Frisby, called to find ways and means to get out a bigger vote. "It is resolved," says a statement issued by the trio, "that only fifty per cent of the people vote at elections. To remedy this evil, Congressman Horace Walpole Frisby—a gentleman if there ever was one—has graciously offered to present a lock of his hair to every woman who casts a vote for him next November. Those who accept this challenge will be pleased to learn that a lock of Napoleon's hair recently sold for $843.10."

THE VOICE OF BROADWAY

By LOUIS SOBOL

Love Is a Lighted Candle!

Ended . . .
Done . . .

As suddenly, as irrevocably as that . . .
Icy, cold as death . . .
Well,
A candle can burn just so long
Before it flutters and feebly flickers out.

A candle can become a sodden, sputtering
Slow fire eating into its slim white body

Consuming it . . . destroying it . . .
I am glad that the flame which flared
So brilliantly . . .

That glowed so brightly in the little hidden
Fastnesses of our short-lived Ecstacy
Was snuffed out

At the height of its burning beauty—
Leaving the candle tall,
Straight, arrogant, proud.

It is better, infinitely better . . . so . . .

—Madeleine.

And Spell It Right!

Funny, how for years certain people will stay out of the headlines and then plop! In they go, a family at a time. I'm referring to the Carlisles—Jay Senior, Jay Junior and Allan P. Jay, Junior, you know, of course, is the chap who together with the society gal, Peggy Moffett, was threatened with kidnaping just the other day. Allan P. is the lad who ran off and married Renee Romaine Fleming, the dance hall hostess, and was promptly disowned. You remember, too, that the Carlisles senior were no end perturbed over the mesalliance and threatened this and that, so the kids went off to live by themselves in some furnished place and Renee got herself a job in "Child of Manhattan," and Allan became a reporter or something.

Add to Above—!

And then there are the two young Kahns, Roger Wolfe and Gilbert—not that they've kept out of the headlines before, but they've both managed to jump in, head first, almost together, on similar news breaks—i.e., the publication of paid notices disowning obligations to their respective young wives. Gilbert's comely frau doesn't have to worry much—she has a healthy share of the Whalen tobacco millions to keep her in muffins and lace cuffs, but Hannah will, of course, have to do something about it—such as getting a nice settlement, or better still, reconciling with the likeable young Roger who's still pretty cah-razy for her, and I don't blame him. She's a nice looking gal with a fetching personality. Speaking of Gilbert, by the way, I'd like to give you an idea why it doesn't pay for a columnist to be too regular a chap if he has the interests of his department at heart. Months and months ago, long before there was any indication of a rift between the Kahns, I was at a cocktail party and there heard for the first time that Gilbert and Anne were ready to call it a day. I jotted down the note. A few seconds later I was introduced to Gilbert, who seemed a trifle uneasy when he learned my name. Another few seconds later and the lad who had effected the introduction came over to me and whispered, "Say, Louie, if you hear anything about Gilbert —don't run it, will you? As a special favor. He's worried stiff you will. Besides, it isn't true—somebody's simply starting a report around and he wants to squelch it." So I obliged—and what did it get me?

Mendlesohnuisances!

These youngsters around town amuse me with the lightness with which they take their marriages. I've discussed before the romance of Alfred Zugsmith, publicity purveyor for Paul Whiteman. He, you recall, eloped with a comely gal named Ruth Feldman, parted from her a month later, reconciled a month after that, parted again a brace of fortnites later and then she started proceedings for a divorce, only to interrupt them a few weeks after, and now the two are together again, happy, I hope. Now comes this young lad, Fred Lloyd, an ambitious kid handling the publicity affairs of Paul Tremaine—or did. I was never one to keep track of these things. Last Wednesday Lloyd eloped with a gal named Eleanor Teck, of Scranton, Pa. Friday her parents had the marriage annulled. Saturday the lad decided perhaps he was too young to be bound by fetters of matrimony, after all. It was for the best and heigh ho what a gay life. Sunday, he spent $9 or more telephoning to the lass who had been his bride for two days, to her mother, her uncle and even her little brother. As a result, Eleanor and Lloyd will embark upon a trial marriage venture—one of the shortest on record—three days, starting Friday. If successful, they'll be remarried. I dunno. It's kind of a crazy world.

So many of the humor mags have begun appropriating the idea of the Dictionary of a Hollywood Producer, that I'd like to go on record here, announcing that the first of the series appeared in this column and was compiled by Leonard Lyons, a young lawyer, and subsequently expanded by other readers. They're going between covers shortly. Lyons' latest contributions are as follows: Madras: what you sleep on; Gas: to conjecture, think, believe; Voice: what business is going from bad to; Vicious: hopes, desires; Weal: calf's flesh that makes a good cutlet; Knack: part of the body between the head and shoulders; Feudal: stringed instrument, violin; Itch: a piece every; Sphinx: playground accessories, consisting of hanging ropes and seats. Sylvia Schonberger has a few ideas on the subject, too, to wit: Conception: t. b.; Condescend: kind of milk that comes from cans; Trample: a very young bum; Inhale: where the bad people go to or should. Mildred Palmer offers these: Fluke: wind instrument; Chemical: funny; Bancroft: insolvent; Beery: a simple fruit; Left: giggled or chuckled.

Gossip About People You Know

WEBBER BELIEVES IN BILL

One more member of the House that believes the new property damage insurance bill that was slipped through the Legislature on prorogation night is a good measure is Rep. Harold B. Webber of Gloucester.

ON TO WORCESTER NOW

The Democrats are actively engaged in organizing the various counties of the state. Middlesex county has been worked into a powerful machine and a great deal of attention is now being devoted to Worcester county.

G. O. P. APPOINTEE SLATED

Apropos of the present situation in the governor's council, where a vacancy exists due to the death of Walter E. Schuster of Douglas, Republicans are expecting that Gov. Ely, if he takes any action at all, will send to the council the name of another Republican in that strong G. O. P. territory.

O'DONNELL IN FIELD

Patrick J. O'Donnell, of Broadway, South Boston, one of the most active members of the Al Smith Club of that section, today announced his candidacy for State Senate in the district comprising Wards 6, 7 and 8.

STIFF FIGHT AHEAD

Political dopesters at City Hall predict a bitter campaign for Legislature in Ward 17, Dorchester, this fall, as a result of the announcement of Francis G. McDonough, former chairman of the Democratic ward committee there, that he will seek election to that office.

BEWARE OF FRIENDS

"Beware of friends who come seeking to do you favors," is the motto adopted by a young married man, who is now receiving financial assistance from the city. A friend of this youth approached him just before he was scheduled to report at the welfare department, and informed him that he had done him a real favor by arranging to have a student dentist put a gold filling in one of his teeth. The jobless one was so enthused that he forgot all about reporting and hastened to meet the student who, it developed, was to fill the tooth as part of his examination by instructors. Late yesterday he met several pals. "That was no favor," he told them, "not only was I tortured for two hours but I lose money for not reporting at Hawkins st."

Janice Copeland Will Wed Broker

Capt. Howard G. Copeland, U. S. N., retired, and Mrs. Copeland, of 61 Beltran st., Malden, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Janice May Copeland, to George Edwin Dudley, son of Mrs. Lillian B. Dudley and the late George E. Dudley of 12 Winn ter., Malden.

BRIGHTER DAYS FOR TROUPERS

Unless Al Shayne of the stage and radio is much mistaken, happy days will soon "be here again" for the ancient American institution of vaudeville. He is bitter in criticism of those who would "sell vaudeville short."

Al Shayne

He is concluding an engagement at the Orpheum tonight. On the eve of his departure for Montreal, he had a few remarks to make on his favorite subject.

"For several years, vaudeville has seemed to be losing ground," he admitted, "all because it wasn't modernized. But that is being changed. Vaudeville has caught up with the procession. Masters-of-ceremonies, snappy reviews and regular vaudeville units, traveling together, are making it about the best entertainment there is."

Shayne believes that good night clubs, cafes and supper clubs will be benefited when prohibition gets the air.

"People will go flocking back," says Al. "Not under the crazy Broadway system of 1927-28, of course. Cover charges and other species of banditry are out."

FIRE CHIEF FIFTY YEARS ON JOB

Fire Chief John T. Nichols of Malden is today completing 50 years as an active fireman, his service having been divided between Boston and Malden. He was first appointed a fireman with Engine 9 in East Boston and was for some 10 years an active member of that department, his last service being with Engines 26 and 35 at the old Mason st. house. He resigned to become a member of the Malden fire department and was the first fireman in the state to take a civil service examination for deputy chief. He succeeded the late Chief Turner as head of the Malden department.

What the Hearst Papers Advocate] No. 8 [Five billion dollar Federal loan for public works and to relieve unemployment.

The Hand and the Eye

In Both You Read Character

COVER THE EYE WITH YOUR THUMB, SEE THE DIFFERENCE

This picture of a British actor named Bobby Howes, with the actor pretending he is bashful or ashamed, or something else, shows the importance of the human hand and eye in revealing character.

Our female ancestors in constant danger of all sorts, in the old cave days, needed all of their intuition to tell them whether the gentleman approaching was coming to help raise the little children or eat them.

Men read character with difficulty, compared with women, but they know, as women do, that the hand and the eye tell what is in the brain.

The eye especially, as this picture interestingly shows, expresses emotion and character. It is the window through which you can look into the mind, the opening through which the mind looks out, sees the world as it is, and through the optic nerve sends information and impulses back to the brain cells.

In this interesting picture, everything changes when you cover up with your thumb the shining eye. The hand loses part of its character, the life goes out of the picture. It is extremely difficult to read the character of the blind, that have "no speculation" in their eyes.

There are as many kinds of eyes as there are kinds of human beings, the fearless eye, the "shifty" eye, the eye downcast in thought, the eye turned upward in contemplation, the eye that is concentrated and the eye not concentrated.

And so with hands, you have the firm hand that shows executive capacity. You have the sensual hand showing self indulgence, you have the hand with the weak thumb, small in proportion to the rest of the hand, the weakness often reflected in the mind that directs the hand.

The nose indicates "breeding" or the lack of it. But the eye and the hand give the most information.

Just Folks

Along the Street

Go walk the street
And you will meet
Proud men who beg
For food to eat,
At every square
You'll find them there
Who'll ask if you've
A dime to spare.

As if of old
Down beggar's lane
They'd often strolled.
But more and more
Heartsick and sore
Are those who've never Begged before.

With downcast eye,
Afraid and shy,
They stand and watch
The passers-by,
And try to guess,
With small success,
The kindly man
Who'll answer "Yes."

But stay serene
In limousine
And poor men's hurts
Are little seen,
For who would know
His brother's woe
Along the street
With him must go.

Words of the Wise Men

It may make a difference to all eternity whether we do right or wrong today. —Clarke.

He jests at scars that never felt a wound. —Shakespeare.

Wit is that which excites agreeable surprise in the mind by the strange assemblage of related images presented to it. —Campbell.

Examinations are formidable even to the best prepared, for the greatest fool may ask more than the wisest can answer. —Colton.

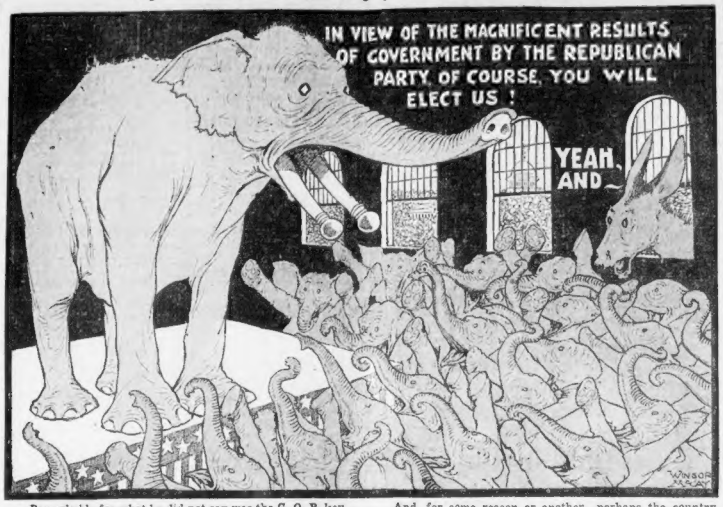
LISTEN, WORLD!—On Magazine Page Today

Says the Donkey, "Oh, Yeah!"



Remarkable for what he did not say was the G. O. P. keynote speech of Temporary Chairman Dickinson at Chicago.

For twenty-two dreary pages he recounted the "leadership" of President Hoover, and NOT ONCE did he mention prohibition, although the rank and file of the party regard it as a most pressing topic—the only real controversy of the convention.

There was no mention made of "a chicken for every pot," a slogan heard long and often four years ago.

Likewise there was eloquent silence on another Hoover slogan of four years ago—"two cars for every garage."

And, for some reason or another—perhaps the country will understand—the Keynoter did not keynote on the Hoover pledge to "wipe out poverty in America."

Scant attention was paid the ten million jobless. As far as the G. O. P. is concerned their cause is as hopeless now as it was before the Keynoter keynoted.

No wonder the smiling Donkey said "Oh, Yeah!" as he tuned in on the keynoting.

The Peanut Vendor

Folks, this is Presidential election year. What about it? These are parlous times, with unemployment and business in bad shape—but where is the politician with a solution for the troubles?

They peddle jimcracks and whatnots that may be decorative, but won't furnish jobs or put security values somewhere near where they belong.

There are 120,000,000 people in the country, including national, State and local officeholders and would-be officeholders, and not a half dozen of the politicians have the initiative to devise a good plan or the leadership to carry out good plans which citizens propose.

New York Day by Day -:- By O. O. McIntyre

Traps for Actors

NEW YORK, June 16—Actors in serious dramatic roles are frequently called upon to preserve decorum under trying circumstances. Any number of plots to evoke laughter during tense scenes has kept entire companies in hot water. There, for instance, was trap set for Bert Lytell.

He was appearing in a skit—"The Valiant"—at vaudeville's Valhalla, The Palace. A group of 18 friends were seeing him from the front row. There is an agonizing moment when Lytell as a condemned prisoner looks out at the audience just before walking to the gallows.

It is the portrayal of a soul in torment, stealing himself for a hero's death. When Lytell gazed out he caught sight of 18 fiery red mustaches of the handle-bar variety attached to as many lips. He did not give way to a snort of hilarity until he reached the wings. But he could not take a curtain call.

The late Cyril Maude, on the opening night of an American engagement, noticed two London critics in a stage box in full evening dress. A curtain screened them from the audience. When he looked at them again, during a scene alone on the stage, they were in athletic shirts and shorts, calmly swaying palm leaf fans.

On the night of his divorce a leading man had as a front row customer his recent wife. She was a comedienne who could simulate a drunken hiccup. During a tender love making scene, as he whispered soft nothings, she interpolated every few minutes with ankle deep regurgitations.

• • •

But the greatest back-stage hoax was perpetrated by Leon Errol and Walter Catlett during the run of "Sally" at the New Amsterdam. At the end of the first act Erroll announced that among celebrity visitors was the noted Italian Count Luigi, war ace and richest young bachelor in Italy. The count had arrived by limousine with a motor cycle escort and in tow of a foreign-looking delegation. His lapel hung with medals and across the white expanse of shirt front was the familiar red ribbon. He was introduced with cyclonic applause, and after the play met the cast. He kissed the hand of Marilyn Miller and several girls in their enthusiasm kissed him. The count was—and still is—Tony, the bootblack at the Lambs.

Times are so that when Henry Sell departed from one of the snootier hotels on that plank of elegance called Fifth Ave, the other afternoon the doorman said: "Good afternoon, sir."

The eagle-eyed John Chapman discovers New York's only screever in a block of West 57th st. In London, the screever or sidewalk artist is common, especially near Trafalgar Square and London Bridge approaches. The screever draws pictures with colored chalks and depends upon pitched coins for his livelihood.

Hendrik Willem Van Loon was recently made a member of the Society of Magicians—probably for changing geography into history, some wag suggests. Van Loon, aside from his talent as a prestidigitator and voluminous writer, is an accomplished violinist, artist and sculptor.

• • •

In a taxi today my wife and I were struck with the resemblance of the driver's license photograph to my own dour visage. There was little resemblance, however, in the flesh. Tapping at his window, I slowed him up to point out the similarity. He got out, looked at it, then at me. "Some," he admitted grudgingly, "but that was snapped after a rough sea voyage."

Jack Benny calls his home town a cemetery—with lights.

• • •

It has been a struggle to round out this column what with every sort of an interruption from a visitors needing $600—the flatterer—within the hour, to three fires in the neighborhood and an elevator accident around the corner. I'm sitting here now rather expecting the ceiling plaster to come down with a crash.

Be Ready for Trouble When Skies Are Clear, Plea of W. C. Forbes

By Bainbridge Colby

A FACT, of which mankind in general is not aware, but which every student of contemporary history knows, is that most of the important world movements have their pivot, if not their origin, in the Far East. Neither London, Paris nor Moscow, has the importance of Peking as a nerve center of those mysterious influences which make for peace or friction throughout the world.

BAINBRIDGE COLBY.

W. Cameron Forbes, recently United States Ambassador to Japan, and before that, Governor-General of the Philippines, has the advantage of outlook which comes from long official sojourn in the Orient and close observation of the interplay of plot and policy in that remote region.

In a commencement address at Concord, Massachusetts, this week, he utters the warning that "every nation should keep up its preparation for time of trouble, and not lie back and become slothful just because the sky happens to be clear."

• • •

HE has only encouraging words for the various efforts to limit the size and power of navies and to reduce land forces, but he reminds us that pacts to refrain from war, and voluntary disarmament by agreement among nations, have not yet achieved a place in the actual practice of mankind.

"Things don't happen that way," says former Ambassador Forbes. "The tendency to go to war has been strong for so long that it is going to take many generations, educated along different avenues of thought, before the impulse to resort to war can be eradicated from the public mind of a nation or a group of nations."

The various peace movements, which appeal so strongly to certain worthy and sincere elements in our population, should be viewed, according to Ambassador Forbes, as merely "hopeful beginnings."

• • •

Rational statesmanship, however, should not be beguiled by them, and the United States, with its exposed position and farflung interests, should not regard them as in any measure of degree affording reason or excuse for neglecting the duty of national self-defense.

It would be well for the politicians, who seek to whittle down the Navy and prune the Army, to note well and bear in mind the pregnant words of this experienced observer and weighty commentator—an authoritative figure in the world of international affairs.

"Do not," says he, "forget that whether the international aspects are bright and peace seems assured, IT BEHOOVES EACH NATION TO BE WHOLLY READY FOR TROUBLE."

G. O. P. Persists in Being 'Wet Nurse' to States

By Claude G. Bowers

CHICAGO, JUNE 16 (INS)—The second day of the Republican convention will remain the red letter day.

It began with the speech of Representative Snell, the permanent chairman—more effectively delivered than that of the keynoter, and more denunciatory of the Democrats.

It ended at one in the morning with the triumph of Herbert Hoover over the straight repealist, with Ogden Mills in the role of the D'Artagnan of the drys.

It was a day of demonstrations, real and mechanical. The mechanical demonstration followed a reference to Mr. Hoover's "leadership" in the chairman's speech. The real demonstrations were those of the evening session when repeal was the issue, and the fight was on.

The Hoover demonstration began mildly, by no means rapturously, and then increased in volume. California waved a flag and sang a song. Then someone thought of a parade of standards, and started one. Slowly, very slowly, others joined. The parade began.

• • •

Faces of Marchers Lacked Inner Fire

Seated where the marchers moved directly by me, I studied their faces. That was the fascinating thing about that demonstration. Here and there, there was a glowing face. Now and then, a shouter or a singer passed by. But most faces were without the light of an inner fire—sombre, sober faces, they were, of men scourged to a task. The press section instantly sensed the mechanics of the thing.

A spontaneous demonstration from a great multitude, actually moved, is inspiring, and this was reserved for the evening session and the repeal issue.

Then the air was charged with electricity. The galleries, for the first time, crowded. All day Hoover's emissaries had been fighting desperately for a prohibition plank rich in the possibilities of evasion—a plank which Borah thinks dishonest, and Butler had denounced as hypocritical and absurd.

There, fighting for the Hoover plan, had stood Ogden Mills, disregarding the clear sentiment of his State, and contemptuously brushing aside the instructions of his delegation.

At length James R. Garfield, chairman of the platform committee, appeared on the stage. He was solemn, stern, alert. He read on and on—one of those interminable platforms Tallyrand must have foreseen when he said that words are given us to conceal our thoughts. On and on, with a reiteration of the Dickinson speech.

And then at length—"The Eighteenth Amendment."

That was what all were waiting for.

And then, clipping his words, Garfield read the laboriously wrought plan conceived by the Cabinet musketeers in close communion with Mr. Hoover, to evade the necessity for a straight repeal; a long, in places, hypocritical, and confusing statement, which sophists can make all things to men.

Here was an apologetic reiteration of the discredited and despised theory that the Federal Government must continue interfering with the rights of the States and remain forever the wet nurse of a "noble experiment" that millions hate.

When he concluded, white-haired Senator Bingham, self-possessed and militant, presented the minority plan for a straight, downright, honest, unequivocal repeal. The moment he reached "repeal" he was interrupted with a demonstration that roared down from the galleries where sat the masses whose votes ultimately will determine the issue.

Butler Denounces Hoover Dry Plan

Butler's progress to the platform was an ovation. He was deeply moved, evidently hurried, but he alone among all the speakers seemed to grasp the fact that prohibition imperils our political institutions, invites contempt for the Constitution, endangers the morals of the nation. He denounced the Hoover plan as "the worst proposition that has been made for dealing with the subject."

Turning upon the majority report, he analyzed it ruthlessly.

He showed it commends the Eighteenth Amendment and its results.

It refuses power to the people to restore the Constitution to its original form and function.

He closed with a reminder to his party that "party harmony is desirable, but first comes party honesty," and called upon it to turn from cowardice to courage, from hypocrisy to straight thinking, and to stop "playing hide and seek with the Constitution."
